COAL CASES ARE DROPPED

DAUGHERTY ENTERED PETITION

Indictments Against Operators and Miners Dismissed.

Charges had Held That 1921 Strike was Conspiracy.

Attorney General's Belief That Conviction Could Not be Obtained Caused His Action.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 28.—Criminal conspiracy cases against 127 coal operators, union officials and miners and 99 corporations growing out of the 1921 nation wide coal strike were dismissed in federal court here today by Judge A. B. Anderson.

The cases had been pending since indictments were returned February 25, 1921. They were dismissed on personal petition of Harry M. Daugherty, United States attorney general who appeared in court.

The indictments nolled charged that the 1921 strike constituted a gigantic conspiracy between the defendants to increase the price of coal and restrain trade.

They were returned under the Sherman anti-trust act.

Belief that a conviction could not be obtained formed the basis for the motion for dismissal, Daugherty said in a statement to the court.

Daugherty declared, however, that many things done at a joint meeting of operators and miners constituted a conspiracy. He also urged dismissal on grounds that he wanted to make it impossible to say that the legal branch of the government was unnecessarily impeding the progress of legitimate business. At the same time he denied the government is taking a backward step in enforcing the Sherman act.

In the future, he said, the government will give more attention to the rights of the general public in affairs of this kind.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America was among the defendants dismissed. Operators freed from the charges include Hulbert M. Ferguson, John Chesterfield, Walter M. Talley and many others.

COUNCIL HOLDS PAT ON ALL VALUATIONS

Members Visit Places Where Kicks Originated and Decide That if Action Taken, It Should Be Upward.

The city council, sitting and traveling as a board of equalization, has decided to stand pat and sit tight in regard to the few complaints on valuations as found by Tax Commissioner Mathews. They visited two properties Thursday morning prior to taking an adjournment sine die. Attorney R. F. Stout, for a client, had opposed the valuation on building improvements at the Yale-Hopewell plant. On building is valued by the assessor for tax purposes at $25,000 and the foundry at $8,000. These, according to Mr. Mathews, are the same figures of last year.

Another complaint concerns a resident property of J. C. Martin, near Twenty-fifth and Sumner streets. He objects to the valuation of $4,600 or $3,700 on the house and $900 on the ground. Members of the board reached the conclusion that if any change were made, the amount should be raised and not lowered. Other complaints adjusted.

Commissioner Dayton accounts for the small number of 1923 kicks by assuming that owners are satisfied. He says that in another year he expects to personally inspect every property in the city. He admits that such adjustments as he may then make may force him to abandon hope of a vacation. It may be necessary for him to stay home and fight.

GOVERNOR IS RESPONSIBLE

SAYS HE DIRECTED VARIOUS PURCHASES OF SUPPLIES.

Did It Because They Were Needed and Not to Prevent Surplus Accruing to Retiring Administration.

Governor Bryan said Thursday that he was the man responsible for the large amount of state money spent and being spent within the last month in the purchase of automobiles, stamps, blanks, stationery and publications which republicans had criticised as an effort on the part of the democrats to prevent the retiring republican administration from claiming whatever credit attaches to ending with a surplus to the credit of the various departments.

Among the purcahses criticised is a $3,200 Cadillac automobile just bought for the use of State Law Enforcement Officer Tom Carroll, who would be known as state sheriff if the governor not [illegible] the office of state sheriff. [illegible] governor says that when Gus [illegible] turned over the machine he represented it to be in good order but that a garageman wanted $500 to fix it up. He said that an unusual amount had been spent on the car for repairs during the past year, and he told Mr. Carroll to use it as long as he could.

The time has now come for a new machine, the governor said, as the necessity of a quick pursuit makes an out-of-repair car worse than no car at all, and he was able to trade it in for $1,200 on the new one. He said that he had also purchased four cars for the use of game wardens in the sandhill country, which is hard on autos. The old ones had been in service two or three years, and if not traded in now would be worthless at the end of another year.

He said that these purchases were all made under his direction. The uncertainty about the code departments made it inadvisable to buy anything for them, and this meant that after the matter was settled a lot of money had to be spent at once for supplies and stationery that would otherwise have been expended over a period of six months. Most of the old blanks and stationery used bore the name of the late governor, and some still in use are so printed. Many of the departments use from five to twenty-five different sets of blanks. Where an unusual amount was bought recently it was done because it is economy to get a larger number printed at one time, and the state saves money, even tho the appropriation for the McKelvie biennium is being used to pay for supplies that will be used in the Bryan regime.

The governor said that he had ordered that no embossed stationery be printed save for his office and those of other constitutional officers. He said the old code secretaries thought they ranked as high as these, but hereafter they will use printed stationery only.

CIRCULATE FORD PETITIONS

Chicago Booster Organization Head Declares Manufacturer to be in Running

CHICAGO, June 28.—Henry Ford for president petitions were circulated here today.

Dr. F. L. Clark, head of the temporary Ford "booster" organization said he did not believe it possible that either the republicans or democrats would nominate the auto magnate [illegible] but added [illegible] the same he will be a candidate."

Clark recently returned from Dearborn, Mich., where he discussed Ford's proposed candidacy with the latter's associates.

INQUIRY INTO A DEATH CASE

HAD WILLED BIG SUM TO HER PHYSICIAN.

Post Mortem Showed Cancerous Growth on Lung and Other Derangement of Internal Organs, He Testified.

At the coroner's investigation of the death of Anna Stevens, seventy years old, 1332 South Eleventh street, who died last Monday at Dr. A. R. Des Jardien's hospital, Dr. Des Jardien testified that the death was the result of a cancerous or malignant condition of the lungs, stomach and liver.

The doctor said that it was difficult to determine the exact cause of death due to the complicated condition of the internal organs. A post-mortem examination disclosed a cancer or malignant growth in the lower lobe of the left lung, and that the lung had become adhered to the diaphragm which in turn had grown fast to the stomach, he explained.

Dr. Des Jardien also said that the pyloric end of the stomach was closed, that the gall bladder was enlarged and contained several stones, and that the liver was greatly enlarged, had adhered to the back and was in an exceedingly unhealthy state.

Any one of these conditions, he said, might have caused her death.

According to the terms of the will of the deceased, Dr. A. R. Des Jardien was appointed executor of the estate which is valued upwards of $70,000.

SMALL RUMOR OF A RECALL

COMMISSIONER COWGILL SAYS IT DOES NOT WORRY HIM.

Intimated That Some Who are Not Pleased With Some of His Orders Have Given Voice to Their Feelings.

Rumors have been heard in city hall and other circles to the effect that an attempt may be made to recall Commissioner of Streets Cowgill, second high man at the general city election last spring. The presumption is that men who are displeased by recent orders pertaining to sidewalk clearance, marquee legislation, alley clearance and signs, may have given free play to their feelings. The commissioner himself has heard of no such movement. When asked Thursday what he would think were a proposed recall suddenly flashed upon him, he smiled broadly.

"That wouldn't worry me in the least. I am concerned entirely with the enforcement of laws pertaining to my departments. I am determined to enforce without fear or favor. If the people do not want impartial enforcement I cannot help it. As long as I am here I shall continue to do what I am doing."

In discussing the injunction brought by the Critchfield-Oberlies Lumber company and others to prevent interference with the fence on public property about the building under construction at the northwest corner of Thirteenth and "O" streets, he said:

"I find that certain people would use the streets for advertising concessions. Apparently these concessions have value inasmuch as objectors engage attorneys to win their point. Regardless of threatening words from men of prominence to me and to the men under me, I shall continue to believe that if any profit is to be gained from use of the streets, it shall go to the city of the whole and to no one individual or group of individuals. I am getting tired of having men tell me and other of my department where we can go. I am tired of hearing that I am not in the army and that I am new in public office and that I had better watch my step."

The injunction hearing is set for July 2 at 10 a. m.

The ordinances of the city refer to signs of or fences in at least two places. One provision makes it unlawful for any person to paste, post, paint, print or nail any hand bill, sign, poster, advertisement on any curbstone, flagstone or any other portion of the sidewalk or to have it done. Section 44 of the building ordinances provides that temporary fences may be erected on public property during building operations after a permit has been issued. Such fence to be removed when so ordered by the building inspector.

The complaint pertaining to the fence at Thirteenth and O streets has to do with certain advertising signs painted thereon.

BORROWED AUTO CAUSED MIXUP

Negro Finally Fined on Bad Light Charge.

Frank Saunders, negro who was arrested Monday night while driving an auto that he had borrowed from Heath Griffiths was fined $1 and costs in police court Thursday morning for driving an auto not equipped with a tail light. Saunders is arranging to scrape up the amount of the fine. He confused police Monday night when he gave his name as George Williams, 1120 Peach street.

According to police Mr. Griffiths loaned his auto to Saunders but when the machine was not returned as soon as he expected, it was reported stolen. It was found Tuesday morning parked near the university campus. Detective Palmer arrested Saunders on South Ninth street Monday night. When the detective went to the police station a little later he learned that an auto bearing the same license tag as that driven by Saunders had been reported stolen.

OUTLAWRY ON BIG RAMPAGE

THREE STORES AT BERWYN ARE LATEST TO REPORT.

Looted Early Thursday Morning by Two Armed Men—Bandits Who Looted Walton Bank Probably in Clear.

Outlawry in Nebraska continues unabated. Three stores were robbed at Berwyn, Custer county, early Thursday morning. One is a jewelry store and the others handle general merchandise. The loss has not been estimated. Two men in an Essex sedan with Ohio license number, are suspected. They hung around Broken Bow for a day or two and permitted it to generally be known that they carried a high-powered rifle. In Broken Bow, one gave the name of Lloyd Wade, according to the officers. He is described as about twenty-eight years old, 5-feet, 10-inches tall, weight 140 pounds, dark hair. His companion is given about the same general description tho he is said to be smaller.

The loot consisted of rings, watches, jewelry, gloves, suits, cigars and cigarets. State Sheriff Carroll assumes that the loss was not great. A cash register taken from one of the stores was abandoned a mile or two east of Berwyn. The men headed east. Instructions to local officers over the state are to use precaution in their dealings with suspects believed to be armed. The license number of the Essex driven by suspects is given as 372692. The men who pulled the Berwyn jobs are not connected by the officers with the Brainard robbery.

Report on Walton Robbers.

Bandits who looted the Walton State bank Tuesday afternoon are believed to have left Lincoln. The suspicion at law enforcement headquarters is that they "borrowed" a car in Lincoln for the job and that after returning to this city, they probably transferred the swag to a high-powered car and that possibly they had an accomplice waiting here.

A garage man of Reynolds, Jefferson county, reported seeing two men answering the description of the bandits at 7 p. m. Tuesday, four hours after the robbery. He said they were in a school house yard two miles west of Reynolds washing their hands and faces. He reported, however, that they had a Dodge car with Kansas license number. They drove west at a rapid clip, he said. State Game Warden George Koster saw two men in a big red car near Ashland, Wednesday evening. He reported that they were traveling at a 50-mile clip. He suspected that they were out of Lincoln. He thought he saw the bobbed head of a girl between them.

Possibly the clamps are being tightened about George Wright and Ray Sawyer, held at the Lincoln jail on suspicion. They are to be arraigned at Pierce, Neb., in connection with the theft of a Buick and which was wrecked in a fatal smashup near Hayti, S. Dak. Sheriff W. S. Warwick of Goldendale, Wash., supplies a few links to the chain of stolen Nebraska cars. The Buick car deserted at Franklin, Neb., he says, was stolen at Bickelton, Wash. This is the car containing dynamite, guns, ammunition, fuses, burglar tools and stolen plunder. Several officers and men from Franklin identified Wright and Sawyer as having been in Franklin on the night of the desertion and subsequent theft of an Oakland car which was deserted at Riverton where a Buick, later deserted at Pierce, was taken.

The men who left the car at Franklin, according to the Washington sheriff, have a trail of crime behind them. They are described as clean

FIRE WIPES OUT VILLAGE

AMES BUSINESS HOUSES DESTROYED EARLY THURSDAY.

Only Bank and Garage Saved Despite Efforts of Bucket Brigade—Loss Estimated at Approximately $25,000.

FREMONT, Neb., June 28.—Fire starting from an unknown origin at about 4:30 this morning, destroyed over one-half of the business section of Ames, a tiny village on the Lincoln highway, six miles west of Fremont, entailing a damage of approximately $25,000 and leaving the town with no business houses excepting a bank and a garage.

The latter two buildings were saved only by the greatest effort of a "bucket brigade" of Ames citizens aided by a Fremont fire department truck.

The stores completely destroyed were the W. R. Jameson confectionery, pool hall and barber shop, and the J. O. Garner grocery. The Rasmussen Brothers' garage was badly damaged.

The postoffice in the Garner store was completely destroyed, the mail being a total loss. The fire, believed to have started between the Jameson and Garner stores, was discovered by Mrs. Jass Hager, who lives several yards from the scene. She was awakened early this morning by the odor of smoke, and instantly aroused her husband who in turn aroused the village. Fanned by the wind, the flames made rapid headway and the buildings were soon enveloped.

The destroyed buildings will probably be rebuilt, it was said this morning. The loss will be entirely covered by insurance except that sustained by W. R. Jameson, who places his loss on the building and stock at $6,000, with $3,500 insurance.

GUY REED GIVEN SEND-OFF

First President of Lions Attends Last Meeting as Member of the Lincoln Club.

The last meeting of the summer for the Lions club was turned into a court session Tuesday, in which Guy E. Reed was defendant. Ralph Weaverling brought a criminal complaint charging the first president of the club with feloniously preparing to leave Lincoln, deserting a quantity of public service and civic duties. Mr. Reed defended himself ably, but was obliged to admit that he was indeed going to Chicago the first of the month to take a position with the Harris Trust company.

Guy Chambers, who presided, read a telegram from L. A. Flansburg and L. T. Skinner, delegates to the international convention at Atlantic City, telling of a yachting trip to the three mile limit, and the sights to be seen in the surf. They said Omaha was putting up a strong bid for the 1924 convention.

The program closed with a playlet, "Wrong Numbers," by the University Players, under the direction of Herbert Yenne. Parts were taken by Miss Gunn, Miss Tracy and Miss Jameson.

FOREIGN SHIPPERS CONVINCED

Secretary Gilbert Declares on Next Trip to American Ports, Craft Will Keep Stores Within Bounds.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Charges that a conspiracy exists to prevent prosecution of liquor law violators here were made today by a federal grand jury before Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Government witnesses appearing before the jury have refused to testify, suffered from "bad memory" and perjured themselves, the twenty-three jurors declared. The jury was unable to return indictments because of this. The jury said government agents were among those giving evasive or untrue answers.

"I know that political influence is being exercised to prevent prosecutions of liquor law violators," Judge Wilkerson said in asking for a complete report naming witnesses and officials who refused to cooperate.

The grand jury has been probing scores of prohibition cases including the Grommes and Ullrich alleged distribution of $200,000 worth of liquor among stockholders.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes was warned today by acting Secretary of the Treasury Gilbert to make no further statement that foreign ships bringing liquor into American waters would be seized by the United States government.

Gilbert announced that no seizures would be made, that no serious consideration had been given the suggestion made by Haynes, and that no such drastic action was believed necessary to control the situation.

Following a conference in Gilbert's office to which Haynes had been hastily summoned, Gilbert said:

"Mr. Haynes has been warned to make no further statement regarding the proposed seizure of foreign ships. I believe it is now well understood that any statement regarding the policy of this government in the ship liquor situation will come from this office."

Haynes was called to Gilbert's office just before a conference with the press scheduled for 10:30 a. m. As he hurried out of prohibition headquarters he told newspaper men that he had completed the draft, of the seizure regulation and would probably have "an important announcement" to make later today.

Foreign shipping interests are now convinced that American dry laws will be enforced, in Gilbert's opinion and on the next trip to American ports vessels will keep their liquor stores well within the medicinal liquor limit prescribed by treasury regulations.

Should foreign ship lines persist in bringing beverage liquor into American ports, Gilbert said "more drastic steps will be considered." He added that the treasury "would not cross that bridge until we come to it."

Haynes had told a group of newspaper men earlier than he had on his desk the draft of a regulation providing for the seizure of foreign ships laden with liquor after a certain date.

When he emerged from Gilbert's office he said:

"I have no statement to make. Mr. Gilbert will give out the news".

Haynes later denied that he had prepared a ship seizure regulation.

Gilbert's statement repudiating reports circulated by another press association yesterday and today that seizures were contemplated seriously by the treasury was issued he said to correct an erroneous impression among foreign shipping interests.

"We are going to keep our shirts on here in the treasury," Gilbert said.

Gilbert's statement follows:

"While seizure of foreign ships would be authorized under the law and it has been suggested by prohibition officials, the treasury is not giving serious consideration to such a step at this time and does not believe such drastic action will be necessary to control the situation."

FOUND TO CONTAIN ALCOHOL

Case of State Against Proprietor of Gem Bakery in Progress in District Court.

The case of the state against John Crees and C. O. French went to trial before District Judge Stewart Thursday morning. It is alleged that John Crees, proprietor of the Gem Bakery, sold two bottles of [illegible] to Leonard Gardner. The liquor was taken to the state chemist and analyzed and was found to contain from 37 per cent to 48 per cent alcohol. According to the statutes any premises where liquor is found may be closed up for a year.

The state ex rel Attorney Matson is trying to bring about this action on the statutory grounds. Mr. French, of Kansas City, owner of property testified that he knew nothing about any illicit transactions carried on in the place and does not want it closed because he maintains he is absolutely blameless and should not be made to suffer. Mr Crees denies that he ever sold any liquor or had it on the premises. The case will be continued Thursday afternoon.

PERFECT "TRILBIES" WON DU MAURIER'S ROLE FOR FRENCH SCREEN ACTRESS

MISS ANDREE LAFAYETTE

LOS ANGELES—Feet, speaking anatomically, are not all that is required to make a good film actress, but they have been a great help to Miss Andree Lafayette, of Paris, who won a chance to come to America and star in "Trilby" because of the perfect outlines of hers

In France, the young woman was known as Andree de la Bigne, and was a successful screen star. She was chosen to play Du Maurier's heroine by Richard Walton Tully, producer of the play.

THE VITAL FLAME

A STIRRING SERIAL OF PRIMITIVE PASSIONS

By MAY CHRISTIE (Copyright)

CHAPTER LXXVI.

Deirdre Speaks.

The coroner continued:

"Graves, the butler, has given evidence that from the time of Mr. Holden's arrival, shortly after 11, until midnight, the front door was unbolted. During that period, Graves left the hall twice. Once when he listened at Mr. Treman's door to sounds of quarreling. And later, after 11:30, when he went to the butler's pantry for ten or fifteen minutes, to get something to eat. It was perfectly possible for you to slip in during that period, go upstairs, and then slip out again."

"But I didn't," said Marcella, head held up.

"The witness, Leonie Day, gives evidence to corroborate it. Shortly after quarter to twelve, she opened her bedroom door, intending to fetch the aspirin, and saw you come from the deceased's room. She had been awakened by a sound, which no doubt was the shot that killed."

"I didn't. I tell you I didn't go near the house. I tell you—" Marcella put her two hands to her face, as tho to blot out the ghastly insinuation.

"You were in your father's bungalow, you say?"

"Yes. Yes."

"And then?"

"Then I went out again, into the little wood, and met Mr. Holden."

"What time was that?"

"I—I don't remember. After 12, I think."

"What did he tell you, concerning the interview?"

She hesitated. So much depended on her answer, and the method of its delivery.

"Did he tell you that the meeting had been fruitless, from the point of view of determining the engagement? Did he tell you that the deceased refused to give you up?"

"No. He—he didn't say much about it."

The coroner raised quizzical brows.

"Rather odd! What did he say?"

"Nothing much," she stammered.

A wave of disbelief seemed to run thru the audience. They didn't want to be deprived of what they'd come to hear.

"Come, come! Speak up. Did he tell you of the quarrel that occurred?"

"Y-yes,"—uncertainly.

"Did he tell you that he struck the deceased?" (This was a shot at random.)

"M'm.....no . . .yes.....I mean, I don't remember"

The corner leaned forward, and rapped the top of the desk sharply.

"I demand that you remember."

Marcella trembled violently.

"He—he said he'd lost his temper—and—and they had had a row. I think that was all he said"

The memory of Miles' disheveled appearance rose up before her Would the coroner wring that out of her, as well?"

"Mr Holden, when found at the inn, had his things all ready packed, as tho to leave either that very night, or first thing in the morning. I understand that you, too, had packed as tho in readiness for flight. Is that so?"

She did not answer

"Is that so?"—louder this time.

"Yes"

"Then you know about the murder?"

The girl flung back her head.

"Never" It was only when Lady Warrington telephoned—"

On, on went the terrible examination Once or twice Marcella—growing more unnerved—contradicted herself. Once she broke down absolutely, but the relentless inquisitor did not desist.

To the majority of the people in the crowded courtroom, it seemed as tho Marcella were the guilty party. She had stealthily followed her lover to Larches, slipped in by the front door while Graves was in the pantry, shot Treman dead with Miles' revolver (borrowed), then flung it thru the open window where it had been found, later, lying in the grass.

She had made her exit by the front door, fearing tell-tale footprints in the flower beds had she departed by the window.

Leonie Day's evidence was very black against her, tallying as it did with Graves' departure from the hall back into the pantry, which was out of earshot.

There were many in the court who thought that Miles was guilty, and Marcella "accessory after the fact."

The flight planned for the following morning—early—seemed absolutely damning evidence.

On, on, went the terrible examination. The net was drawing tighter, more unbreakable, when suddenly—from the back of the courtroom—came a great commotion, and a woman's voice, high and strident, demanding admittance.

"I tell you I will get in! You shan't keep me out! Stand off! Let me past!"

Everyone turned around, craning their necks in the direction of the disturbance.

They saw a yellow-headed woman, slim, but apparently endowed with cat-like agility, struggling with a large policeman who was trying to shove her back.

"I will get in! Ow! Ouch! You brute!" She twisted suddenly in his grip, and before he could prevent her—had buried her teeth in his hand so deeply that, with a smothered cry of pain, he let go his hold of her and she darted up the center aisle until she stood by the table directly in front of the raised platform and the coroner's desk.

The woman's hat had fallen off, in the struggle, and her eyes burned with an unearthly light Her cheeks were brilliant spots of color in the whiteness of her face.

"It's Deirdre," muttered the girl in the witness box, below her breath.

The woman faced the coroner (who was so taken by surprise that momentarily he had lost his power of speech) and in a ringing voice, and pointing dramatically at Marcella, cried:

"They told me, outside, what you were doing to that girl! You fool!" She swung around on the crowded audience "Fools, all of you! Look at her—is she the sort to—"

"Silence, woman!" roared the coroner, starting up. "How dare you come in here! Officer, remove her!"

The policeman with the bitten hand came forward with reluctance.

The woman swung around on him, eyes glittering.

"Touch me if you have the courage! I don't leave until I've said my say! That girl there"—pointing again at Marcella in the witness box—"has no more to do with the death of the man who calls himself Treman than the babe unborn! Nor," pointing straight at Miles Holden on the front benches, "nor has he! Fools, all of you—to accuse them!"

At this juncture she was seized, but fought with a strength that seemed almost super-human The court was in upheaval. People rose in their seats.....

"Let go of me! I have more to say! I'm not mad!" she shouted, above the tumult, struggling desperately. "I've got to save her! I will save her! You shan't stop me!"

The coroner motioned to the men to let her be, for a moment.

"Speak, then, woman. Quickly."

Deirdre drew her breath, and then, pointing again at Marcella, cried out in a ringing voice:

"That's the only woman in the world that ever did me a kind action—you shan't make her suffer instead of me! It wasn't she who did the murder—it was I—myself—because I hated him—because scum like Treman shouldn't be allowed to live!"

ENDORSE ADEQUATE WAGES

Speakers at Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems Approve Collective Bargaining.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 28.—Adequate wages and collective bargaining were endorced by speakers at the Catholic conference on industrial problems here today.

The conference is attempting to promulgate better relations between capital and labor.

Father John A. Ryan, principal speaker of the day, declared that altho Catholicism opposes socialism, it holds there is a middle ground between socialism and individualism where state and industry is concerned.

Referring to Pope Leo's XIII encyclical on labor, he asserted that whenever the general interest of any particular class is threatened with evils that cannot otherwise be met, public authority may step in and meet them.

The state may step in to remove evils threatening any particular class, may properly deal with strikes, promote sound family life and the practice of religion among the working classes, he said.

WOMEN NOW ADMITTED.

FIFTY YEARS A PROFESSOR

FORMER UNIVERSITY INSTRUCTOR CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

Recalls Grasshopper Days and Buffalo Hunting While a Resident of This State.

Dr Gilbert Ellis Bailey, who was professor of chemistry at the University of Nebraska in 1874, has for the last fifteen years been professor of geology in the University of Southern California. He celebrated his seventy first birthday a few weeks ago, and last week marked the end of fifty years of work as a professor In an article in the Los Angeles Times, Doctor Bailey reminds his readers of the changes in education which have taken place during that time. Altho deeply appreciattive of the good old days, he closes his article by saying that as he looks back over his fifty years as a university professor he can only wonder at the immense progress that has been made and look forward to a still greater grander progress in the future.

Dr. Bailey recalls that a part of his duties during his year at the University of Nebraska were "killing buffalo for the grasshopper sufferers, hunting on the Republican river and helping Professor Riley give a grasshopper banquet at Lincoln." A map of the country at that time would have shown that nearly all of the educational institutions were from Chicago eastward. West of the Mississippi river was largely terra incognita. In Los Angeles fifty years ago they were just graduating their first class of seven from the high school.

The status of science at that time is shown by Dr Bailey's textbook, which he still keeps It was written by a Yale professor and "covered" the whole range of science in 350 small pages It advised the student that safety from lightning could be found by "being within a feather bed, so as to be entirely enveloped by the feathers," with further warning not to let "the head or feet come into contact with the bedstead" It was a textbook of the times when men carried ladders to light the street gas lights, as they did in front of the university.

As for college sports, baseball had "just emerged from two-old cat" fifty years ago, while football was purely a kicking scrimmage in which one's shins suffered most. "No one dreamed of the days," he says, "when a coach might pull down more than prexy himself"

Dr. Bailey views with cheerful complacense the youth of today He believes co-education is beneficial, he thinks methods of courting have not changed very greatly; he insists that more safeguards are thrown around the students of today than around those of yesterday and rejoices that old-fashioned hasing is now the exception The denominational colleges he sees as a vital in returning to normalcy. The chief danger of the present day, in some schools, as he sees it, is too much commercialism and spreading the courses out too thin.

HARD WIND NEAR OMAHA

FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS WORTH OF DAMAGE DONE.

One Man Killed in Iowa When He Comes in Contact With Electric Wire on the Ground.

MAHA, Neb., June 28. Damage approximating $50,000 was done by a tornado like wind and rain storm which struck here at 5 p. m. Wednesday.

The wind reached a velocity of thirty-nine miles an hour and .52 inches of rain fell in less than a half hour.

Parts of buildings, trees, telephone poles and wires were blown down, and plate glass and automobile windows shattered by the hail which accompanied the storm.

Two aged women and a little girl who had taken refuge in the cellar of their home had narrow escapes when the heavy downpour filled the cellar with five feet of water.

The hail did immense damange to crops and fruit in the vicinity of Fremont. A barn was blown down, fences destroyed and a hay rack laden with alfalfa carried fifty feet at the Charleston farm, north of Fremont.

Hundreds of Fremonters watched the storm from house tops.

The worst damage in Omaha was done in the fashionable Field club and Fair Acres districts. Hundreds of fine trees were uprooted and electric light and telephone poles broken off. Dundee and the Field club districts were in darkness last night.

Many basements in the business and residence sections were flooded by the rain which almost reachd the proportions of a cloudburst.

Among the buildings blown from their foundation or torn up was the power house of the University of Nebaska medical school. The left side of this structure was sucked out by the wind and scattered along the railroad tracks.

Five feet of water in a cellar, almost drowned Mrs. Anna French, seventy Mrs Carrie Harper sixty one and Geraldine Lucas ten. They were rescued by members of the welfare board.

Hundreds of telephones in all parts of the city were still out of commission this morning. "Live wires" were dangling from poles in several places, making travel unsafe.

MURRAY, Ia., June 28.—One man was killed and heavy damage was done to crops in this vicinity as the result of a sixty mile gale that swept through this region last night.

Claude Long, twenty, Talmage, Ia., was electrocuted when a tree, crashing to the ground before the storm, brought down an electric wire that came in contact with the youth's body. Long was driving an automobile at the time.

Wires were down here last night, leaving the town in darkness and telegraph and telephone communication was practically cut off.

SAYS FARMER VICTIMIZED

President of Oklahoma State Board of Agriculture Plans Southwestern Wheat Conference.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., June 28.—Charging that the American farmer was "victimized" by the decisions of the national wheat growers and millers at the recent Chicago meeting, John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture, made plans today for a southwestern wheat conference which will probably be held at Witchita, Kas., early in July.

"Super-optimism" was blamed by Whitehurst for the alleged misleading statistics, which, he declared, have resulted in a bearish trend of the wheat market since the Chicago meeting.

"All estimates submitted to the conference there," he said, "included Russia with a enormous amount of export wheat, which, I believe, is purely mythical. Apparently there exists a plot to give wheat-hungry Europe an opportunity to fill her bins with American wheat at starvation cost to the American producers," he declared.

"Any consideration of 1924 wheat acreage and production at the proposed Wichita conference will be based upon statistics of the United States and other known countries," he asserted.

County association leaders in all wheat production sections of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska, Missouri and Colorado were queried regarding the proposed conference.

The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss means to put wheat growing back on a profitable basis to the producers, consider diversification of crops thruout the southwest and work out a plan for orderly marketing of the southwest wheat crop, according to Whitehurst.

KLAN MEETING IS BROKEN-UP

Ten thousand Persons Gathered at Denver to Hear Lecture Which was Called Off.

DENVER, June 28.—A meeting of 10,000 persons at the Denver auditorium called to organize a local branch of the ku klux klan, was dispersed last night on orders of R. W. Means, commissioner of public safety.

Many protests had been received by local city authorities against allowing use of the municipal auditorium for the gathering.

Shortly after the meeting opened, means said if there was any objection to continuing to session in the auditorium, it would be called off.

The announcement was greeted by hisses and cheers from the seething, milling crowd. Police had difficulty maintaining order between the rival factions and a near riot resulted.

G. K. Minor, klan leader form Atlantic City, N. J., was unable to speak when the uproar started in the crowd, and disappeared from the hall.

Two Catholic priests, in the army uniforms they had worn as chaplains during the world war, were foremost among those to object to the speaker delivering his address. Their appearance on their feet was the signal for the general furore. Many hooted the priests for their interference, others maligned the klan and the mayor for permitting the meeting to be held in the municipal building.

TIKHON MUST FACE TRIAL

Archbishop Who Admitted Plottings Against Russia Faces a Hearing.

MOSCOW, June 28.—Archbishop Tikhon must face trial by the Greek orthodox church for his plottings against the Russian government, Metropolitan Antonin, high prelate of the church, said today in an interview.

Tikhon, after months in jail, publicly admitted his guilt and announced he had experienced a change of heart, laying blame on czarist agents for his conspiracy against the government. The supreme court thereupon recommended that he be liberated.

"The former patriarch is sincerely repented in the civil courts. He must now repent in the church," said Antonin.

His trial will follow in the usual manner.

SYNOD TAKES NO ACTION

Local Pastors do Not Believe Money Will be Available to Move Missouri College.

Reports which reach Lincoln of the convention of the Missouri synod of the Lutheran church, in session at Fort Wayne, Ind., make no mention of plans for removal of the college from Concordia, Neb. In the past Lincoln had been considered by the trustees as a possible new location. The large sums already voted for extension of the theological seminary at St. Louis and other educational projects, it is believed locally, may absorb all funds to be counted upon till the next convention. The present session will close Saturday.

Dr. Francis Pieper, president of Concordia seminary, St. Louis, Mo., addressed the convention Wednesday. He gave a warning against the "pernicious" opinion regarding the eternal destiny of the human race, stating that the doctrine which holds that there is no such thing as eternal perdition was fallacious and without foundation in fact.

"The person who does not know the purpose of the world and his own life lives aimlessly or blindly", Dr. Pieper declared. "But the person who knows for what purpose the world still stands and for what purpose he himself still lives in the world—upon his pathway thru life are shed the beams of a bright light.

"But here we are confronted with the question: Is there reliable and certain information as to the purpose of the world and our own life? Yes, indeed, provided we go to the right bureau of information. God in His word, that is, in the Holy Bible, gives us clear information concerning the purpose of the world and of man's life, so that only those can possibly remain in ignorance who decline information from God's word.

"Holy Writ teaches us quite clearly that this present world exists and is preserved by God solely for the purpose that the gospel of Christ is preached in it, that is the message of the forgiveness of sins for the sake of Christ's vicarious satisfaction.

"We know indeed that most men do not agree with this view." They have a different world view. They imagine the world stands for the purpose that men may show how splendidly they can develop themselves, what they are able to do in morality, education and culture. But this is an erroneous world view which will certainly bring those who cling to it into eternal perdition. Man has a beginning but no end, he bides forever, either in eternal happiness or in eternal unhappiness. When Christ the judge of the world shall appear there will be two men in one bed; the one shall be taken the other shall be left."

AUCTIONEER KILLS SELF

Sends Bullet Thru His Head While in Car on Bridge Across the Wood River.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., June 28.—Col. Henry Harry, carrying the title as an auctioneer, committed suicide early today by shooting himself thru the head while in a car on the bridge across Wood River near the Loup Valley packing company's plant. He was an effective and popular auctioneer and well known in this part of the state. It is believed by the officers that domestic trouble was the cause of the action. He was thirty-three years old. He came here from Chapman, the family home, where a brother was accidently killed in a runaway accident two years ago.

INSTRUCTIONS IN WET WAYS

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE STATE HEADS ARE DRILLED.

Told Tactics of Anti-Prohibition Element Behind Closed Doors—Not to Make Attempt to Secure Dry Plank.

WESTERVILLE, O., June 28.—The American Anti-saloon league today schooled its state superintendents in the ways of the "wets."

A virtual class in enemy tactics met behind closed doors at the last session of the league's three day "dry" conference here.

Specific instructions for carrying the $2,000,000 campaig naginst prohibition repealers into every state and congressional district were placed in the hands of forty state superintendents.

As usual the meeting opened with a hymn followed by prayers.

The dry leaders, it was learned, will make no attempt to secure a prohibition plank in any political platform, state or national. They will go back to their states, however, under orders to lend vigorous support to the election of out and out "drys."

The possibility of Gov. Al Smith of New York, controlling enough convention votes to nominate a "wet" democrat for president still haunts the conference. Few delegates will discuss such a possibility at length, but they admit that substantial plans are being made to meet the situation should it arise.

A poll of democrats in the conference here showed a prevailing sentiment for William G. McAdoo as the democratic presidential nominee. With the league's republicans outspoken in their praise of President Harding it appears evident that the organization's voting power is not to be concentrated behind any one party label.

HELP FOR GIRLS WHO WORK

Mrs. Lodic Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Tyrone, Pa.—"A friend told my husband how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped his wife, so my husband bought me a bottle because I was so run-down, had a nervous weakness, no strength in my body and pains in my left side so bad that I could hardly do my work. Before I was married I used to work in the factory, and I had pains just the same then as I have had since I have done my housework. I would not be without a bottle in the house now. It has stopped the pains all right and I have found out that it is a wonderful body builder, as it has made me well and strong. It is going to be the 'old reliable' with me hereafter, and I am always willing to tell other women how it has helped me. You can use this letter as you wish as I can honestly say that my words are true."—Mrs. M. LODIC, R.F.D. No. 4, Box 40, Tyrone, Pa.

Letters like this bring out the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DESCRIBE BRUTAL BEATINGS

Witnesses for State Tell How Whipping Boss Treated Martin Tabert.

LAKE CITY, Fla., June 28.—Brutal beatings, alleged to have caused the death of Martin Tabert, in a convict camp were described in detail today in the trial of T. W. Higginsbotham, accused of the youth's murder.

Higginbotham, "whipping boss" for the Putman Lumber company, sat with his wife and small son in the hot, stuffy little court room and listened to the testimony, apparently unmoved.

Graham Ward, a locomotive engineer, was the first witness called today. He said he had seen flogging of Talbert by Higginbotham.

Other witnesses said when Tabert asked to be excused from work by illness, Higginbotham forced him to lie down while he whipped him with a heavy strap. The number of lashes was estimated by various witnesses from forty to eighty.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

COMPANIONSHIP IS ELEMENT OF DAMAGE

That of Wife has Monetary Value to Her Husband is Declaration of Supreme Court in $50,000 Case

A contention made by A. D. Compton of Omaha, who was hit for $5,000 damages for the death of Mrs. Inez Ensor in an automobile accident, that loss of services and companionship are not elements of damages to a spouse was denied by the supreme court in a decision handed down Wednesday. The law, it says, does not permit a husband in such a case, to secure any money damages as a solace to compensate him for mental suffering and bereavement, but that if he can show that the services and companionship of his wife are of such a character as would be of advantage to him he is entitled to a recovery for whatever can reasonably be said to have a money value.

Mrs. Ensor was riding with Harry Montgomery, whose machine was run into by that of Compton, which, it was claimed was going fifty miles an hour, at Fifty-second and Dodge streets, Omaha. Mrs. Ensor was thirty-nine years of age, employed and earning $16 a week, and was contributing to the support of the family of her husband, a telegrapher. Under such special circumstances her companionship did have a money value.

Executors' Sale Valid.

The supreme court has affirmed the action of the Kearney district court in refusing to set aside an executors' sale questioned in the case of the heirs of John F. Johnson against S. M. Erickson. The latter was one of the executors, and when the property was sold a nephew bought one of the pieces of land for $6,000, which he later transferred to Erickson. The heirs tendered the money back and brought suit to have the sale annulled on the ground that an executor cannot buy property of an estate in which he is functioning.

The supreme court says that this is the law, that neither directly nor indirectly, can an executor make such a purchase, and it is immaterial whether he paid the full value or whether no fraud was intended. It developed, however, that the nephew did not buy it for Erickson, and inasmuch as the heirs made no objections until after the boom set in and land went to unusual heights of value, the court says it will not invalidate the sale.

Owed An Obligation.

J. H. Simpson lost out in supreme court in an effort to collect a commission of $2980 for the sale of land in Antelope county belonging to Con Harley. The court says that the evidence shows that he got a purchaser at a price higher than that made by the land owner before he made his contract of agency, and that when the purchaser found out he could have got the land cheaper he refused to go thru with the deal. The court says that the agent has imposed on him an obligation to make full disclosures to his client and that he cannot maintain a suit for commission when he disregards wilfully such an obligation.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

The marriage of Miss Kathryn Harnly, daughter of Mrs. L. C. Harnly to Lloyd Milton Blankenship of Shenandoah, Ia., son of Mrs. Harriett Blankenship of Peru was solemnized at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at Trinity Methodist church. Large silver screen, on either side of which was arranged a lattice, banked with palms and twined with pink rambler roses and ferns, formed the setting for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Arthur Brooks in the presence of two hundred and fifty guests. Tall cathedral candles were at either side of the altar and extended the length of the center aisle of the church. Preceding the entrance of the bridal party Miss Dorothy Doyle sang, accompanied by Mrs. E. G. Bivins who played the Lohengrin wedding march as the bridal party entered. The ushers, Walter Gass, Welch Pogue, Julian Applegate and Floyd Reed entered first and were followed by the bridesmaids. Miss Esther Blankenship and Miss Elizabeth Scribner entered together. Miss Blankenship wore a gown of sand colored beaded georgette and Miss Scribner's gown was pink chiffon trimmed with tiny ruffles. They were followed by Miss Dorothy Hammond who wore salmon pink georgette and Miss Betty Riddell whose gown was of green georgette combined with silver cloth. All carried baskets of pink rambler roses. They were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Thelma Harnly, sister of the bride. Miss Harnly's gown was blue silk lace combined with georgette and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The bride entered with her mother, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was of white satin made on long straight lines with a court train hanging from the shoulders. Her long veil of tulle was arranged across the forehead with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses, lilies-of-the-valley and swansonia. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Mrs. Harnly's gown was of silver lace over gray crepe with a girdle of gray satin. She wore a corsage of roses and sweet peas. Donald Blankenship acted as his brother's best man. A reception followed in the church parlors. Large silver baskets of pink roses and pink candles in silver candleholders used with lavender tulle formed the decoration on the two tables where the ices and cakes were served. Mrs. W. E. Morley introduced the guests and invited them to the reception room where Mrs. Carl Bumstead and Mrs. Harry Ankeny were in charge. Presiding at the tables were Mrs. Dick Westover, Miss Clara Wilson, Mrs. Walter Gardner and Mrs. Fred Aldrich. They were assisted in serving by members of Alpha Phi sorority. Seidell sang and as the bridal party entered the Lohengrin wedding march was played by E. C. Mueller accompanied by Frank Huntsman on the violin. The marriage lines were read under an arch, covered with pink rambler roses and ferns in the center of which was a huge pink tulle bow. Tall baskets of roses stood at either side of the altar which was banked with ferns and palms and white daisies. The ushers, Paul Seidell and Leo Geschwender were followed by the bridegroom and his best man, Raymond Scholz. The bridesmaids, Edna Kolterman and Grace Peterson entered at the same time down an opposite aisle. Miss Kolterman wore a frock of yellow organdie, lace trimmed, and Miss Peterson's gown was orchid organdie combined with Venetian lace. They carried arm bouquets of pink roses. The matron of honor, Mrs. W. C. Miller of Arapahoe wore green organdie with a corsage of roses and sweet peas. The little flower girl, Marion Hoppert, in white organdie, carried a basket of rose petals and the small ringbearer, Roland Mueller, carried the ring on a lace trimmed pillow used at the wedding of the bride's aunt, twenty years ago. The maid of honor, Miss Gertrude Hauschildt, sister of the bride wore a frock of pink organdie combined with Venetian lace and carried a basket of pink roses. The bride's gown was of white satin combined with lace with a long train. Her veil of tulle was arranged with a quaint plaited frill at the back held in place with a band of pearls across the forehead. A reception for seventy-five guests was held at the home of the bride, 1601 B, following the ceremony. Roses, white daisies, and baby's breath decorated the rooms. A pink canopy was arranged over the table which was decorated with a crystal basket of pink roses and crystal candleholders bearing tall pink tapers. Mrs. P. C. First annual Madison club picnic and reunion was held at 6:30 Wednesday evening at Antelope park. Sixty were present. The club which has met several times during the winter was formed of former Madison residents now living in Lincoln and suburbs. The purpose of the club is to reunite old friends and renew friendships. Aid also can be given to visiting friends who desire information about past Madison people. Mrs. William Parkinson of University Place is president of the organization. Judge W. V. Allen, an expected guest, was unable to attend.

Commissioner Cowgill will recommend disallowance of the claim of George L. Bartlett of $1,000 against the city. Mr. Bartlett alleges in his affidavit, that on June 3, 1923, properties between Y and Orchard streets and Twenty-seventh and Twenty-ninth, were flooded because negligence on the party of the city in failure to furnish ample entrances to storm sewers. He claims that the city failed to maintain correct grades and that because of this failure, existing drainage facilities were destroyed. He alleges that water poured over his premises at 1112 North Twenty-eighth street, destroying basement walls, canned fruit, fruit jars, family relics and household articles. Mr. Cowgill insists that the house on the property in question is in the natural path of water flow, that a sidewalk is lacking and that a natural ravine has not been disturbed by the city.

A barrel of mash had been overturned by the owner, evidently expecting a visit by the rum hounds. Kotchkovik, owner of the farm, was taken to Albion where charges of possessing a still were filed.

No Finality in Science.

There is no finality in the explanation of what we see happening around us. All explanations are in terms of something more fundamental, something to which we assign certain characteristics and the behavior of which we can describe under given conditions, but which is in itself inexplicable just because it is the foundation of all our explanations. In this case our search for a more complete understanding has led us to base our explanations on the behavior of only two entities, the electron and its counterpart, the proton, which enters into the formation of the atomic nucleus. To these bodies we assign certain properties; for instance, we say that they obey, under some conditions, the same laws which would be obeyed by bodies with a mass and an electric charge. It is to be continually kept in mind, however, that our ideas of mass and of electric charge are founded on large-scale observations of bodies containing enormous numbers of atoms and charged with a very high multiple of the electronic charge. We tentatively apply the same ideas to these units of which matter is formed; but there is no surety that they can be so applied, and we must be ready to modify them or discard them if necessary.—Yale Review.

Fake Cleaner Not Guilty in Eyes of Law

The law does not hold the cleaner responsible!

Let me tell you the story of the wise and the foolish virgin—the wise and foolish virgin of modern days.

There was to be a tea-dansant at the Webster country club, and two maidens were bidden to come.

Because each one belonged to a middle class family, she decided to send her afternoon dress to the cleaners.

The wise virgin sent her dress to a reputable establishment—to a plant that had an established reputation in the town wherein she lived. But the foolish virgin wanted to save money and she sent her dress to an unknown cleaner who offered a bargain price.

And, when the guests were summoned for the dansant, the wise virgin was ready. But the foolish one was forced to make excuses. Her dress had been ruined.

She sought consolation in a law suit, only to find that the law does not hold a "fake" cleaner responsible.

These are actual conditions as they exist in every city in the United States. A cleaner is not legally responsible. But a reputable establishment cannot afford to lose business by making unwarranted mistakes. [illegible]

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

The first bottle gave me so much relief that I kept up its use and was completely relieved of my ailment and restored to good health. LABOR BOARD ASKS POWER

WANTS TO COMPEL PENNSYLVANIA TO COMPLY.

Congress Called Upon for Authority to Force Election Giving Clerks and Freight Handlers Election.

CHICAGO, June 28.—The United States railroad labor board today called upon congress for power to compel the Pennsylvania railroad to comply with the board's decision.

The request is embodied in a decision holding that the carrier, contrary to the will of congress, is violating a board order to hold an election giving clerks and freight handlers privilege of voting for "representatives of their choice, either individuals or an organization" to negotiate wages and working conditions.

The railroad defied the order because it would have placed the brotherhood of railway clerks, freight handlers, express and station employes on the ballot. The policy of the road is that employe representation shall be through "company unions."

Persistence in violating the order is in contempt of the United States supreme court decision sustaining jurisdiction of the board, today's decision said.

"Surely congress when it reconvenes will take proper steps to guarantee to the employes and to the public that no carrier, however great and powerful, shall again propogate industrial discord and endanger public tranquility by flouting the will of congress as interpreted by courts of the country," the decision declared.

The board's request for congressional action putting "teeth" in the transportation act is on petition of the clerks' brotherhood.

LIONS LISTEN TO REPORTS

Club Singing, Civic Activity, Club Bulletins and Weekly Attendance are Discussed.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 28.—The second day of the international convention of the Lions clubs opened with a resume of the reports from all the various district governors. The chairman was District Governor W. O. Mendenhall of Kansas.

Club singing occupied a prominent position in the address of W. G. Higgins of San Antonio, Tex., on "The Ideal Luncheon Program."

James P. Schick, of Washington, D. C., spoke on "Local Civic Activity and Its Place in the Club's Work."

Fred M. Davis, of Lynchburg, Va., read a paper on the weekly bulletin of the Lions club, and how it ought to be edited and published.

The subject was given Mr. McCordick because the club of which he is president recently set a record of eight consecutive meetings without a single absentee.

GUARD TROOPS TO REMAIN

Governor Walton to Leave Men in Okmulgee Until Local Officers Can Function.

OKMULGEE, Okla., June 28.—National guard troops in charge of law enforcement in Okmulgee county will remain here until Gov. J. C. Watson is satisfied local authorities can "enforce the laws efficiently" according to a statement by the executive made public here today.

"Local officers are too often allied with secret, lawless mobs and I have been unable to get results in law enforcement previously," the governor said.

Two hundred troops were sent home soon after arrival, when it was found they were not needed to enforce the governor's edict of martial law. Fifty militiamen were on duty in the town of Okmulgee; fifty at Henryetta and a score each at Dewar, Spelter and other towns in the mining district.

A military proclamation issued by Adjutant General B. H. Markham forbidding mass meetings, was enforced today.

THE LOVE THAT WON

By FAY STEVENSON

Copyright, 1923 (New York Evening World), Press Publishing Company

A NEW DAILY SERIAL STORY THAT ANSWERS THE QUESTION "SHOULD A GIRL PROPOSE?"

An Unexpected Departure.

Jean was very much provoked at herself for telling John Wellington Browne that she was engaged to Oscar Livingston. She meant to watch his face and see whether he really cared, but she was unable to read his thoughts this way. She realized now that a true gentleman is not so emotional that one may read his deeper thoughts by his expression or by his actions. It was true that this man had turned toward the window when he learned that she was engaged, but when he did face her his features were composed and his voice quite as steady as usual.

As she prepared for business the next morning she dreaded to meet this man she loved so much. She was afraid he would either think she did not care for him or else that she merely told him she was engaged to spur him on. She knew now that the girl who intends to win the admiration of the man she loves does not do it by pretending other men are in love with her. Why had she not refused Livingston's offer to take her to Europe for a honeymoon trip and gone on with her work at the office? It was good to work side by side the man you loved, even if he did not care for you.

Determined to see Livingston some time that day and dismiss him from her life forever, she finally gained enough courage to go to the office and begin her daily work.

When at last she looked in to John Wellington's office she was surprised to see another man sitting at his desk. Had she so frightened him that he did not care to meet her again? There was a branch office up town had he gone up there to get away from her?

No one in the office seemed to know why Mr. Browne was not at his desk. Even Lucy Long shook her pretty head and arched her eyebrows with a curt "Am I my brother's keeper?"

If he had gone away on business Jean was certain he would have left instructions. Before vacation time he always left a score of instructions. Now it was evident he had gone off on short notice. He had gone because he knew she loved him. Or had he gone because she was engaged? Perhaps he had cared.

These thoughts worried her all morning. She made copy which was full of errors and twice the senior partner asked her to rewrite his letters. She had intended to ask if Mr. Browne was to be gone from the office long, but since she had made several mistakes that morning and she was known for her efficiency, she felt that the old man would suspect the cause of these errors.

"Where's the junior boss gone?" asked the office boy at noon. "There's a telephone call and the man who's in his office has gone to lunch."

"I don't know, a-s the senior partner," she replied, straining her ears to catch the answer as the boy repeated his inquiry.

"He's gone off on a ten days' fishing trip," snapped the old man, and Jean's heart beat normally again for the first time since she discovered John Wellington Browne's absence.

She met Oscar Livingston at their luncheon rendezvous.

"Say," he began in his usual abrupt manner, "that trip's all off. My boss is going to send another chap to Europe."

"Thank heavens!" sighed Jean.

"Why, don't you want to go?" he asked. "I was so sure of you. I knew that was the only way I'd get you to be my wife. You couldn't resist a trip to Europe?"

"I was going to," she told him frankly.

"Oh, well, then I stand just as good a chance right here in New York, don't I?"

She nodded merrily at him over a glass of water. Life suddenly became very rosy again, for things were just where she wanted them.

How Was Mother Graham's "Cure" So Swiftly Achieved?

I FLUSHED with pleasure at Katherine's commendation of my telegram, for I value her opinion highly, and the fact that she had found no technical change to make in the message to Dr. Braithwaite pleased me inordinately.

"I must send this telegram at once," I said hastily.

"Would you mind?" Katherine hesitated deprecatingly as she hurriedly rolled up a bundle of clothing and thrust it into a serviceable yet gaily-decorated laundry bag. "You said you would take these uniforms to Mrs. Tiger, and I don't know when I'll have a chance to get out of Mother Graham's room again. She's certainly on a rampage. I'd advise you to keep out of her way for a while unless you have a hankering to——"

"I fly!" I exclaimed with a wry smile. "But you must come down to luncheon. Katie will be desolated if you miss her surprise."

"I'll get away in half an hour if I have to chloroform your respected mother-in-law," she promised. "At that, I think when I have a chance to tell her the news about Mrs. Durkee she will calm down a bit."

"I'll tell Katie to have luncheon in exactly half an hour," I said, and then, tip-toeing out of the room, with an apprehensive glance at my mother-in-law's closed door, I stole downstairs, and making my way to the kitchen, gave the promised directions to Katie.

"Half an hour!" she exclaimed in dismay. "Dot no goot! I 'fraid surprise no good eef eet stand so long."

"Oh, I Feex Qveeck—"

Her voice was doleful, but I know her little ways, and I guessed that she had not yet prepared the "surprise," but that, like most temperamental cooks, she wished no exact time set for the serving of luncheon, and snatched at the most plausible excuse.

"I'm sorry, Katie," I said with a decisive note in my voice, "but Mrs. Bickett and I have something most important on hand, and we cannot eat any luncheon if it isn't ready just at that time."

Katie capitulated, as she always does when I take that tone with her.

"Oh, I feex, qveeck as dot lightning'" she promised earnestly, and then with an impudent twinkle in her eye, she added with pretended meekness:

"I carry me dot clock in vun hand all time, und shoost at second of half-hour you find luncheon on table. Will old voman's coom down?"

"There will be only Mrs. Bickett and I at the table," I replied, ignoring with an effort Katie's impertinence, for it was no time for me to be captious. I had too many irons in the fire, all of them dangerously warm, for me to risk upsetting Katie's hair-trigger temper.

"Dot's goot," Katie returned, unabashed. "Maybe you have leetle bit peace vile you eat, den."

An Unexpected Appearance.

Wisely, I had retreated at the close of my last sentence, and I could pretend ignorance of Katie's slighting references to my mother-in-law. But I am afraid I was feminine enough to give a suppressed chuckle at my little maid's accurate summing up of the situation.

For the next few minutes I busied myself with getting off the telegram to Dr. Braithwaite, and then, taking the key of the car my father had given me from the mantel where it is always kept, I went out to the barn. With the pleasure which only a confirmed motor enthusiast knows, I turned the switch key and backed the machine out, finding music in every throb of the engine.

The sight of Jim, busily picking the chickens Katie had ordered for the evening's dinner, the homely, familiar sounds from cow stall and chicken yard, the look of the rambling, comfortable old house in its setting of trees, bare now, but soon to waken to the spring time—I welcomed them all, treasured them and felt the tug of nostalgia as I thought of the all-too-brief stay I could make among them.

Katie, wide-eyed, called to me as I guided the machine past the kitchen porch.

"You no go 'way now. Eet almost half-hour."

I turned off the ignition and alighted from the car. But the reply to Katie which was on my lips was never uttered, for my mother-in-law, majestic, yet miraculously cured of her rage, appeared in the doorway behind her and beckoned imperatively to me.

THAT CRAZE FOR JUST ANOTHER DASH OF COLOR

EVA—I'm so glad you like my bathing-suit—but it's not new. I took three little bandanna handkerchiefs, appliqued them in diamond pattern on last season's suit and—behold! One must be colorful even while bathing to be up-to-the-minute this color-mad summer!

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Will you please suggest a few articles that would be nice for a girl to give to her steady young man friend?

I have been going with a young man for five months. Some say just a card is necessary, while others suggest something better.

PATIENCE.

PATIENCE: It is not necessary to give any presents to such a friend as the young man of whom you speak.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man just out of my teens. I have been going with a girl a few years younger than I. There is another young man who is always trying to cut me out. Sometimes he does, but I don't like him for this simple reason.

He has asked her many times to go with him to certain dance halls. This I don't like. I am not the least bit jealous over her, but I do like her and I would do anything for her, and I don't want anybody trying to lead her off. She is full of life always—out for a good, jolly time—and that is all that I like to go with her for. I have talked and tried to make her understand why she should not go to these places, because I have been to these places.

She just laughs at me when I try to help her out. She says, "Oh, well, I want to see for myself." Do you think I am doing right by warning her as I do?

RADIO SAX.

RADIO SAX: Since you are not engaged to this girl, you have no right to dictate to her, my friend. Her parents are the persons to decide where and with whom she should go.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 18 years old. I met a young man three years ago. We fell in love with each other. He had to leave, and when he came back a few months ago, it seemed as though he did not care. He tells me he loves me, and once asked me to marry him, but I refused, as I'm not sure of his love.

When at a dance he dances most with me and does not take other girls home, but lately he has not asked to take me home. I love him dearly and would do anything in the world for him. Life without him is not worth while. I don't go with other men—they don't interest me.

Please tell me whether he cares for me and whether I should forget.

BROKEN HEART.

BROKEN HEART: The young man certainly loves you or he would not have asked you to marry him. There is no reason why you should forget him. Perhaps he will propose to you again. If he should, you can accept him. Then you should be very happy.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

It seems hard for me to make friends with young men. I make friends easily with girls, and usually keep friends when I make them. What would you advise me to do in order to make friends with young men?

PEGGY DEE.

PEGGY DEE: Act toward the young men as you do toward your girl friends. If you do this, there is no reason why you shouldn't be very popular with them.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of female interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

The Way Mme. de Montespan Ruled Louis XIV and France.

AMONG the maids-of-honor to Maria Theresa, the wife of Louis XIV of France, was a very beautiful girl by the name of Francoise Athenais de Tonnay-Charante, the daughter of the Duc de Mortemart.

At this lovely blonde girl with eyes of the deepest blue the gay Louis cast many fond glances. But the wise Athenais meekly lowered her long lashes over her bewitching eyes and acted with the modesty and discretion to be desired in a lady-in-waiting.

However, the clever Athenais was only playing a part. In her mind was one thought and only one—to be loved by the King. If she had to wait years, she would wait with patience to be the undisputed favorite of Louis.

Had Athenais encouraged the King at this time she would have been obliged to share his devotion with another—because the susceptible Louis was openly paying court to a sweet young girl—Louise de Valliere, whom he later established in the Louvre.

Realizing that Louis admired virtue in womanhood—although prodigate himself—Athenais planned her life accordingly, and married the Marquis de Montespan, by which marriage she assured herself of an excellent position at court. And while there she continued to charm the King.

To further her scheme, Athenais posed as the staunch friend of the Queen. She did this so cleverly that she was really responsible for poor Louise de Valliere's flight from court. This occurred after the deceitful Athenais declared:

"If I were so lost to decency as Louise de la Valliere and if I made our Queen so unhappy I should hide my face from mortal sight and perish of shame!"

Shortly after this, Athenais was established as the King's favorite and the marquis, her husband, was going about in mourning for his wife, whom he described as "worse than dead."

All of France laughed at this mockery, but Louis did not relish the joke. So Louis threw the marquis into prison and soon afterward ordered a legal separation for his favorite from her husband.

Madame de Montespan was a fascinating woman. She was not only beautiful, but very high-spirited. So high-spirited was she that she was called the "wild cat of the court." But to Louis she was very docile.

It is said that Louis was very much annoyed at her frequent attempts through alchemy and magic—which were believed in implicitly in those days—to hold his love. And undoubtedly such proceedings cooled it—although the termination of this royal romance was hastened by Louis's devotion to the royal governess of his seven children by Madame de Montespan. This was Madame de Maintenon, whom he afterward married.

Madame de Montespan, on hearing that Louis had offered to replace her with Madame de Maintenon—although she had refused him—flew into a temper, showed her "wild cat" qualities and tore off the wig of her King, exposing his very bald head to many servants and courtiers.

For this insult, Louis never forgave Madame de Montespan. She was banished from court and imprisoned in a convent, where she lived alone for 16 years.

But during her days of favor, Madame de Montespan wielded more power over Louis XIV and thus over France than did the real Queen. And for this reason her name has been recorded in the annals of history.

She Tore Off the Wig of the King, Who Was Bald.

The face on the present silver dollar is that of Miss Anthony de Francisco, wife of the young Italian sculptor who designed the new dollar. Her face has appeared on all our silver dollars since the fall of 1921. The design of the coin was selected by the fine arts commission from eight submitted designs. Miss de Francisco's head represents the Goddess of Liberty. However, the new coin is called the "peace dollar" because on the back of it is an eagle standing on a mountain top, with a broken sword in the foreground—signifying disarmament—and an olive branch of peace. Back of the mountain are seen the first rays of a rising sun of a new era. From 1878, up to the advent of the new dollar, the face used to portray the Goddess of Liberty was that of Miss Anna D. Williams, head of the kindergarten work in the Philadelphia public schools.

The city of Washington is included in the District of Columbia, which is directly administered by the government and so no one can vote in the district. However, it is estimated that about 40,000 of Washington's 488,000 retain their legal residence elsewhere and send their votes home by mail. The district is governed by three commissioners—two civilian and one army engineer—appointed by the President.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Important Points to Remember in Buying Lamps.

TO be useful! To be beautiful! To spread the gospel of warmth, comfort, happiness! To help people to see clearly to do the things they want to do!" This is the new creed of the lamp and in its modern beauty and accomplishment, the lamp certainly deserves all the nice things that may be said about it. No matter what form of lighting is used in the home, the lamp always holds its place as the keynote of real hominess.

Lamp bases have reached a most artistic standing, and with the special mountings in vases, jars, bowls, basketry pots, glass containers and the many things that are used, the lamps are delightfully individual and are made suitable for the places they occupy.

This question of suitability is one that each home-maker should study, and a few hours spent among the shops where lamps are to be found will give many appreciable hints upon the subject. For instance, in the small hall, which boasts only a console table for its decoration, there should be a lamp on the table with flat sides instead of oval or round. The new drum shades—also flat—come for just this purpose. They are six inches wide and 18 inches in diameter. Made of parchment, the shades are beautifully decorated in soft coloring with a good deal of dull gold, suggesting polychrome effects.

Still another novelty is the three-cornered lamp with shade to fit, designed for a corner table. Many of these lamps have light shade frames and the panels are painted on fine bolting cloth, or embroidered on the same material.

A very artistic desk lamp of wrought iron is designed to represent a growing flower. The root at the base with the rising, curving stem ends in a drooping blossom-shaped shade, colored delicately like the flower it represents. The coloring of the shade matches the decorations of the room.

Old Chinese porcelain jars are very popular for the lamp bases, seen in a smoky brown or meerschaum color like a well-colored pipe. The shade is of softly-gathered chiffon of the same shade lined with tangerine, banded top and bottom with a velvet band edged with dull gold. This is inconspicuous in the daytime, but delightfully colorful when lighted. Chinese blue jars are also sought for this purpose and the shades used for them are usually blue and white combinations.

An odd fancy for lamp shade decorations are the new glassened parchment flowers. They are lovely in coloring, soft and pliable to arrange and they can be dipped in soap and water and washed when dusty. The flowers also are being used for table decorations and large single flowers for shades for single side-lights—candle or electric.

Real masculine desk lamps have heavy bases in bronze, brass, wrought iron or other metal, and the long cylindrical shades, also of parchment, are those that may be turned to suit the reader by the little hanging chain. These lamps are also convenient for desk use and are, of course, electrified.

The lampette is a convenience that should be better known, not only for home use, but for those who travel and stop at summer places where the lighting is always a problem. The little lamp is attached to a flexible two-inch-wide strap with an oval weight. From it there is a six-foot cord with a plug ready to attach to any socket handy. The light may be used over the bed, or anywhere needed. The weight balances the lamp wherever it may be hung.

The wooden standing tray lamp is a delight to the smoker, as the little circular tray around the stem is just the right height to hold "smokes," matches and ash trays. The shade for this lamp is usually of shaded parchment tastefully decorated in dull gold—the color of the parchment matching the decorations of the room.

The glass lamp is one of the most charming novelties. The base is of a clear glass in soft coloring—usually amber. The shade is of hand-painted blown glass—exquisite when lighted up—a dressy lamp that is distinctly appropriate for an attractively furnished and decorated formal room.

YOUR HEALTH

What You Can Do to Avoid Danger of Neurasthenia

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

SOME persons break down and become neurasthenics, not because of the conditions of modern life, but because they possessed all the "makings" and were ready to become neurasthenic on any provocation. Had they been born in a less strenuous age or in other surroundings, their lack of adaptability might not have been discovered.

It is a great thing to be able to adjust yourself to your environment. Failure to do so means mental friction, and friction long continued will do harm.

It is not alone the conditions of city life, however, that produce a nervous breakdown. The old-time rural monotony is just as bad. No doubt many a case of nervous prostration has come from the dull, dreary, dark and miserable circumstances of having nothing to do. The symptoms of neurasthenia are almost as many as there are victims of the condition. Loss of power to perform the ordinary duties of life is perhaps common to all the cases.

The book-keeper can't add. The seamstress can't thread her needle. The chauffeur is afraid to drive his car. The business man dreads his office. The teacher can't bear the noise and confusion of the schoolroom. The reporter can't find words to express his thoughts.

Did you ever throw down your sewing, papers or books and declare you would never take another stitch or write or read another word? That is an early symptom.

Inability to sleep, fitful sleep, lying awake for hours, then falling asleep when it is time to get up, and finally leaving the bed more tired than on going to bed—these are signs of neurasthenia.

Pains here and there, headache, eyeache and difficult breathing are other symptoms. Profuse sweats, palpitation of the heart and throbbing or pulsation somewhere in the body are other symptoms.

With all the rest the victim has an abiding belief that he is doomed, that he can never recover.

In the treatment of these cases the first essential is to arouse in the patient the desire to recover and the belief that he will get well. To this end he needs a doctor in whom he has confidence, or one who can awaken the hope of recovery.

Change of scene, change of companions, diversion, new thoughts, all will help.

Almost always there is a physical basis for the trouble. This must be discovered. Frequently constipation is found to be present. Coarse food and the daily use of petroleum oil, a tablespoonful on retiring, will help this symptom.

Tub baths or shower baths every day with brisk rubbing of the skin afterward, will promote the well-being of the patient.

The oculist and the dentist should pass on the case. Eyestrain or dental defects may be the cause of some drainage of nerve energy.

The patient should discuss all his fears and confess all his sins to his physician. Frankness of this sort will go far toward cure.

Let us avoid neurasthenia by sensible regulation of our habits, restriction of our hours of labor and systematic recreation and vacation.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure!"

Answers to Health Questions

E. M. B. Q—My skin is dry and harsh and I never perspire. Will you please tell me what causes this?

2—I am 53 years old and am 5 feet 4 inches tall. Will you please tell me what my correct weight should be?

A—This is probably due to a nervous condition. You should keep your health built up and should take daily outdoor exercise. Practise deep breathing and get regular hours of sleep in a well-ventilated room.

2—A man of the age and height you mention should weigh about 145 pounds.

* * *

B. H. Q—A relative of mine died recently of tuberculosis of the lungs which later developed in her throat. She has left me a valuable fur coat. Do you believe that I can contract the disease by wearing this coat?

A—No, there is no danger of your contracting the disease if you disinfect the coat thoroughly by putting it in the direct sunlight several successive sunny days.

* * *

N. K. Q—Will you please tell me how I can thin my blood?

2—Is —— harmful?

3—How much water should be taken a day?

* * *

T. H. D. Q—I am a man 28 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches tall. I weigh 187 pounds. How can I reduce the size of my face?

A—For your height you should weigh about 158 pounds. It is almost impossible to reduce any one particular part of the body. For weight-reduction instructions, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and restate your question.

* * *

H. H. L. Q—I am 19 years of age and am 6 feet tall. Do you think I will grow taller and what should my correct weight be?

* * *

F. B. Q—My nose bleeds quite frequently and the inside is always red. Will you please tell me what causes this and what to do for it?

A—You probably have an ulcer on the nasal septum or you may have catarrh. Consult a nose specialist or apply at a nose clinic for an examination and treatment.

* * *

A. B. C. Q—Is it advisable to have the window in the bedroom of an elderly person open in damp weather as well as in clear weather?

A—His bedroom should always be ventilated, but it is not necessary to open the window as much in damp weather as in clear weather.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes an Adorable, Frilled, White Frock for a Bridesmaid.

THERE has been much excitement at Madame's for the past week, as every one has been busy executing an order for a wedding outfit.

"Honestly, there's so much fuss to a wedding I should think the bride would be completely worn out," Gaby commented.

"It seems to me the bride in this case has less to worry about than we have," I returned.

"Well, I've seen from experience that it's awfully hard to suit each and every one of the bridesmaids, for what is becoming to one isn't always becoming to another, and, of course, they must all have a finger in deciding on the costume."

"But don't you think this bride has chosen exceptionally well?" I asked.

We glanced to where the completed model frock was suspended from a hanger and agreed it was lovely.

"White is always becoming to youth, and there's nothing daintier than fine white net," the wardrobe mistress assured us.

I gathered a dainty frill of the white net in my hand and drew it nearer so I could admire the little colored French bouquet near the bottom of the skirt.

"Who is responsible for the creation of this lovely thing, anyway?" I asked.

"Mlle. Jardin," they told me.

"She has combined cleverness with extreme practicability, as she always does," I commented.

The dress was simple and was perfectly charming, as simple things often are. The white silk slip was made straight and the scalloped hem of the net frock dropped just below it.

"The practical part is that these dresses are ideal to wear all summer," Gaby remarked.

"Just what I was thinking," I assured her. "They're ideal for a garden party or late afternoon affair, and then they're quite appropriate to wear to a summer evening dance."

"Very easy to copy," I murmured.

"Yes," agreed Gaby. "And if you didn't want to make the net frills, you could buy net by the yard already frilled."

"The bride saw a wedding in France that gave her the idea," I explained. "All the bridesmaids wore white net with just a touch of color in the little French bouquets that were used on them."

Just then a lovely young girl came in to try the frock on. She slipped into it and came out to let us inspect her.

"If she looks as bewitching as that at the wedding, I'm thinking there'll be another bride soon," I whispered to Gaby.

"Yes," she whispered back, "whether she catches the bride's bouquet or not."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, JUNE 29.

Peculiar conditions are to be read from this day's disquieting astral rulership. Although there may be an opportunity for an important change or journey, which may bring some advantage, yet other unfavorable aspects presage disappointment or delays. There may be a tendency to impulsive conduct. Be quiet and shun quarrels and social perplexities. Care for the health.

Those whose birthday it is have the prospect of a year of perplexity, perhaps precipitated by their own careless conduct. They should avoid quarrels, care for the health and be discreet. A child born on this day may be impulsive, unless it is thoroughly trained.

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silver

MRS. BAT EXPLAINS.

"GOOD morning, Mrs. Bat," squeaked Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk, as she spied Mrs. Bat clinging to the rafters of the barn. "You must be a sleepy-head to be snoozing so late in the day."

"Oh, I don't know," laughed Mrs. Bat. "I'm not sure who is the more stupid, you or I. In the first place, it's night and not day at all."

"Night!" Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk exclaimed. "Oh, of course! I had forgotten that my day is your night. Stupid I am, to be sure, and I beg your pardon for disturbing you. But you see I couldn't help noticing the way you held the corner of your wing curled up and I wondered——"

"Oh, dear!" Mrs. Bat laughed good naturedly. "I thought there was something else in your calling so early. No, I haven't been hurt. I suppose you thought that boy who chased me last night caught me, but he didn't. Don't you really know why my wing is curled up this way?"

"No, I don't know," laughed Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk. "I've watched you flying around and I noticed how you carried your wing and I thought surely it had been injured."

"Goodness, no!" Mrs. Bat laughed, flying down beside Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk. "If you won't tell I'll let you in on a secret."

When Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk nodded, Mrs. Bat unfolded her wing, and a little creature no larger than a bee was clinging to her wing.

"Gracious me!" exclaimed Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk. "If it isn't a baby bat! And you mean to say that you carry your baby every place you go?"

"Certainly!" replied Mrs. Bat. "Why not? I'm just about as proud of the youngster as any mother could be, and I never go out without taking her, too."

"Mighty nice to be able to carry your family around with you that way," said Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk. "You certainly are a wonderful mother, for most mothers grow weary and like to get away by themselves once in a while. I'm ashamed to admit it, but my youngsters get on my nerves sometimes."

"It's Night and Not Day."

"Well, I don't know how I would act," said Mrs. Bat. "If I had more than one child at a time. But we bats very seldom do. It isn't much work to clean and feed one, and then if I take it with me everywhere I go, I know it is out of mischief and perfectly safe. Besides, baby bats are born without any hair, and they must be kept very warm so they won't die. Now, please excuse me, for I must go back to bed or my baby will be getting restless."

Carefully folding her wing over her youngster, Mrs. Bat flew back to the rafters.

"You'll excuse me for disturbing you, won't you, please?" Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk asked. "I wanted to know if you were hurt."

"Of course, you're excused," Mrs. Bat said drowsily. "Come again when I'm not quite so sleepy and we'll have lunch together."

Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk promised she would, and quickly ran home to look after her own children.

"Wouldn't I look funny with all you youngsters on my back!" she said, as she counted her babies.

The little chipmunks didn't know what she was laughing about, but they joined her and they had a merry romp together.

HARDING INVADES STATE OF BORAH

To Speak at Pocatello at Noon But Subject is Not Yet Announced —Advised to Ignore World Court.

By Lawrence Martin.

WITH PRESIDENT HARDING EN ROUTE TO POCATELLO, Idaho, June 28.—"Bill" Borah's state received President Harding today. The president was to speak at Pocatello at noon. The subject was not known in advance but it was intimated Mr. Harding probably would refer to the world court.

His advocacy of that proposal is growing more vigorous daily and while his references to it in Idaho will be such as not to constitute offense to Senator Borah, they probably will be pointed, if he decides to mention the subject.

The fact is that Mr. Harding is coming close to the Borah idea of a court separated entirely from the league of nations and outlawing war. He believes it may be possible to make a working alliance with Borah before the end of the forthcoming senate fight on the proposal. He has been strongly advised, however, to confine his two speeches in Idaho today to agriculture and other domestic questions. He will speak at Idaho Falls in the afternoon.

The presidential train crossed into Idaho this morning after two days in Utah. Yesterday Mr. Harding and his party motored 150 miles to spend three hours in Zion National park. Mr. Harding and his physician, Dr. Sawyer, rode up Zion canyon on horseback.

SCIENTISTS ARE BURNED

Italian Who Investigated Etna During Lapse in Eruption Injured by Cinders.

CATANIA, June 28.—A group of distinguished Italian scientists was partially buried by ashes and lapilli on the slope of Mount Etna following the last violent eruption of the volcano. Rendered unconscious by gasses and falling cinders, the geologists had a narrow escape, recovering during a lapse in the eruption and all escaping unscathed.

Professors Barbagallo, Kammerling, Mantica, Dagostino and Perorella climbed Etna during the lull that followed eruptions of mid June. Approaching the central crater, they ascertained that frequent formidable explosions were continuing within, shielding from view by the high walls that glowed with heat.

A new crater was emitting a dark red material, concerning which the scientists were in doubt. A dense grey smoke arose from this new opening on the afternoon of the 25th. Later, when the party, headed by Professor Baragallo was still nearer a terrific explosion occurred sending showers of lapalli and cinders over the party.

All of the men lost consciousness. For hours they lay while a gentle rain of ashes sifted over them. Fortunately they were not far from the vicinity of the Etna observatory and a searching party organized at roll call time brought them in.

SIDE TALKS.

A FOUR WEEK COURSE

Guess God thought it would be a good thing for me to know more about hospitals if I intended to write about them.

Anyhow He has just given me a four weeks' intensive course on the subject, during which I modified some of the ideas I expressed in this column a few weeks ago.

And became more fixed than ever in others.

Some weeks ago I wrote an article in which I found fault with the way so many hospitals are all bound up in red tape. In return, quite a few of my readers rose up and found fault with me. While others rose up and supported me.

Since then I have had my little practical experience and I have come to these conclusions.

About That Face Washing

The red tape is more necessary than I realized in the large hospital because the head of a large institution can't keep an eye on all the details. Red tape simply means that certain rules have to be laid down which are for the good of all, though they may sometimes work badly in individual cases.

That a small hospital is a good place to go if you hate rules and want more freedom, because the head of the hospital comes into closer contact with individuals and will often relax rules when she sees it is for the

That it would be difficult to arrange matters so that the patient need not be awakened in the morning to have his face washed, but that it could be done and should be done in certain cases, even if the patient's face went unwashed all day.

Nurses and Nurses

That every trained nurse is not by any means the all-wise and all-comforting person I thought, but just a woman who has taken a course in nursing and who is a blessing and joy, or a broken crutch, according to what the material was in the first place.

That some women take up the profession because they have that heavenly tenderness for suffering—that womanly desire to follow in the steps of "the greatest mother of them all."

That others take it up because they think the caps will be becoming. (At least I have met with some who showed no other qualification for the profession.)

That a really good nurse is a true ministering angel and should wear a halo instead of a cap.

That the really poor nurse, the nurse without sympathy or conscience the nurse who gives only eye service—well, I shudder to think of her power for evil.

That it is wonderful beyond words that those who cannot pay should have the splendid things done for them that are done in some of our hospitals.

The Fair Way to Judge

That a private hospital, like most human institutions, is a lengthened shadow of few personalities, and will be mediocre or wonderful according to the personalities of its superintendent, its head nurse, and its chief of staff.

That a hospital, like all human institutions, must not be approved or condemned by a standard of ideal perfection but according as it gives us more than we could get in any other way. The patient in the hospital ward may not get perfect care, but that isn't the question. The question is, does he get better care than he would at home.

That I wish there was no such thing as illness, but as long as there is I am mighty glad there are such places as hospitals.

That I am not altogether sorry I took the course—one cannot go thru any deep human experience without learning something—but that I hope I shan't ever be asked to take a post-graduate course.

Tomorrow—The Arithmetic of Life

WALT MASON

GET TOGETHER

Now let us get together to help our good old town, nor use our lungs of leather to run the boosters down. If Jones puts up a dwelling, let's praise it to his face, and not get busy yelling that it is a disgrace. The endless criticising discourages those men who would, with pep surprising, put up a chicken pen. To kick and carp is yellow, it shows a lack of sense; it merely sours the fellow who plans to paint his fence. When we behold a neighbor intent on worthy deeds, oh, let's endorse his labor, give him the praise he needs. "The cowshed you are building," let us to him explain, "with all its costly gilding is surely safe and sane. It's flagpole and its manger appeals to every man, it notifies the stranger that Punktown's in the van. You set a high example, you teach us that our town is well prepared to trample unworthy rivals down." If we would boost the builder we'd fill him with content, and he would spend a guilder where now he spends a cent. It is the idle knocking that keeps a village down; it is the spiteful talking that petrifies a town. So let's forget our grudges and trade our rocks for flowers ,and if the old town budges the credit will be ours.

BEATEN BY THREE HUSBANDS.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: About two years ago I met a handsome young man. I fell madly in love with him, but as the story goes, he didn't care for me. Of course the inevitable happened. We went to California and I returned with my baby, a wreck. Of course I was wrong; I'll admit that.

Now I've met a fine fellow who says he loves me, regardless of my past life. Should I burden him with my load of sin? I love him passionately and baby loves him, too, and I feel that I cannot live without him. But should I marry, and disgrace him with my past? Mother says if I love him I wouldn't have him disgraced, but oh Mary, I want him so.

Please, please Mary, answer this and sympathize with me, right away. I'm so—Discouraged.

A. As long as the young man knows your story and is willing to make you his wife, I see no reason why you should hesitate in allowing life to make up to you for the past.

I would marry him and try to forget the tragedy of years gone by.

I'm sorry if your other letters went astray. I do not recall ever hearing from you before.

Dear Miss Gordon: Well, I have read your column rather by jerks and jumps, you might say, so I haven't any great problems to solve, I suppose. But let me say, in my mind, or as far as I'm concerned ther is no kiss of respect nor hugs of respect. I have gone with a girl for more than a year and we did not need to resort to those to promote respect for each other, and spooning was of no great benefit to anyone that I ever ever lerned of yet. But it has led to the downfall of many a young person.

I know for I have seen it practised in more ways than one. I have patronised dance halls that were rubbing shoulders with saloons and gambling dens. I have also attended partys in the homes of the young people of the comunity. I find that a better class of young people attend the socials than those that attend the dance hall.

Girls, don't fall in love with a fellow to soon; wait a while; look around a little; judge him by the other guy once in a while.

The greatst problem of today is not for every girl to have a fellow nor for every guy to have a girl. We shouldent expect to always have a good time. Let us apply some of our energy to work. Their is real enjoyment in a task well done. Fore tommorrow we must take up the burden of our land we are the fathers and mothers of tomorrow, so let us learn a little at a time to carry this burden for 'tis heavy. We cannot assume it all at once. Don't think I'm an old foxy for I'm only twenty-four and I'm still alive.—Flee

A. I like your philosophy—too often young persons forget that work is, after all, the thing from which we derive the greatest constant enjoyment.

Dear Mary Gordon: We mothers are apt to deplore the present flapper styles and the too free use of cosmetics among young women, but are we training our own little daughters to show a more becoming moderation in dress and personal adornment?

As a rule this sense of values and appropriateness can be developed in any normal child. Hair ribbons should be selected to blend with the general color of the dress. A red leather belt, no matter how pretty in itself, should never be worn with a pink dress, for instance. A little girl may not perceive this, but a wise guidance in such matters so well repays the careful mother.

Also in the use of jewelry has the mother a great responsibility. Little daughter wants to wear a ring like mother does. Too often mother buys a cheap, gaudy ring. Daughter is very proud, but all too soon the metal tarnishes and the stones fall out. Daughter begins to weep, but mother says, "Never mind, dear. It didn't cost much. We'll get another one." How wrong this is, and how unfair to the child whose sense of values and joy of possession have been rudely shattered.

Better no ring at all, or a simple gold band that can be bought for comparatively little, and will, with care, last a lifetime.—A. K. L.

A. The sense of values which we receive in youth is the only permanent one. Mothers can guide their children into the right path by judicious example.

Care Making a Science.

"Who would think that a cookbook could be so funny!" commented a young housewife. "Listen to this cake recipe: 'Take a large lump of butter, some sugar, a number of eggs, some soda and some vinegar and enough flour to make a batter. Beat all together for half an hour.' If my great-great-great-grandmother had any luck with that cake it was a mere chance and the long beating that brought it. But how silly to waste so much time in beating."

One often is amused in ready very old recipes for making cake before the use of baking powder was understood and before cake making had become an accurate science. Yet even today one frequently hears a housewife complain that sometimes her cake is good and sometimes it is not. She never can be certain when preparing a company dinner that her cake is coming out all right. She has not learned that cake making is a science. Definite proportions, proper mixing and correct oven temperature comprise the principles of making cake. If these are followed a reliable recipe will not fail. In butter cakes the fat should be well creamed and thoroly blended with the sugar. The eggs next should be mixed with the butter and sugar, or the yolks of the eggs if only this part is designated. Milk and flour, sifted with baking powder and other dry ingredients, should be added alternately to the first mixture, if best results are to be obtained. The flavoring should follow. If whites of eggs are to be beaten separately they should be folded in last—folded in instead of beating, as beating breaks down the air circles.

Oven temperature required for cake baking varies with the size and kind of cake. Loaf cakes require a slower oven than layer cakes. For accuracy an oven thermometer should be a part of the housewife's equipment. A slow oven registers from 250 to 300 degrees Fahrenheit, a moderate oven 350 to 375, a hot oven 400 to 450, and a very hot oven 500 to 550 degrees. If one has no thermometer the flour test should be used. A small amount of flour sprinkled in a baking pan will brown in two minutes in a hot oven, in three minutes in a moderate oven and in five minutes in a slow oven.

You, Too, Can Have Beautiful Hair

The novelist says:—"Her hair, soft as silk—"

The movie screen recites:—"Her hair, rich, brown and lustrous—"

The poet sings:—"Her hair, like spun gold—"

Everyone, recognizes the charm of beautiful, soft glossy hair. Yet few realize that beautiful hair is mainly a matter of care and cleanliness.

A FITCH SHAMPOO twice a month will keep your scalp clean and free from dandruff and the pores open. It will remove dirt and unnatural oils from the hair, leaving it healthy, silky and lustrous.

Don't sit by and watch your hair grow thin and lifeless. No amount of curling, patting or tucking away of stray locks can compare with a natural wealth of hair in clean, healthy condition.

Write for copy of our free booklet, "The Secret of Beautiful Hair."

The FITCH SHAMPOO is on sale at first class toilet goods counters, in two sizes, 75 cents, $1.50 for family package. Complete directions at leading barber shops.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

At a pretty house wedding Thursday afternoon the marriage of Miss Carol Simpson to H. P. McCandless was solemnized at 2:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Nellie Payne Simpson in University Place. Rev. W. D. Hamilton of University Place performed the ceremony in the presence of about forty relatives and intimate friends. Baskets of pink roses and sweetpeas formed the decorations thruout the rooms and the marriage lines were read before a background of ferns and pink roses. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Irving Pratt of Superior sang "Because" and "At Dawning" and was accompanied by Miss Hazel Wepking who played the Lohengrin wedding march as the bridal party entered. The maid of honor, Miss Mildred Simpson, sister of the bride and the best man, Charles McCandless, brother of the bridegroom, entered together and were followed by the bride and groom. The maid of honor wore a gown of orchid georgette over rose satin and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. The bride's gown was white crepe combined with lace and she wore a long tulle veil with a band of pearls across the forehead. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. An informal reception followed the ceremony, Mrs. Glen Fordyce presided at the table and was assisted in serving by Miss Lenore Gilbert, Miss Laura Boyd, Miss Mary McCandless and Miss Dorothy Hammond. After a moior trip thru Colorado during the summer Mr. and Mrs. McCandless will make their home at Gothenburg where he will coach athletics the coming year.

The marriage of Miss Grace Harris, a graduate of the University of Nebraska to Jospeh McFayden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert McFayden of Omaha took place at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the home of Miss Francis Whitmore, a sorority sister of the bride. Only relatives and a few intimate friends were present for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. B. M. Nyce. Tall baskets of garden flowers formed the decorations thruout teh living rooms. The bride wore a traveling suit of taupe silk with a large corsage of roses, sweetpeas and baby's breath. Mr. and Mrs. McFayden left in the afternoon for a wedding trip to the Minnesota lakes after which they will make their home in Norfolk where Mr. McFayden is in business. Probably the biggest sport he had was watching traffic in Los Angeles. PATHFINDERS BUILD BRIDGE

Rustic Structure Completed by Lincoln Club Members on Annual Trip to Camp Strader.

As bridge builders, the Pathfinders are a success according to reports of their activities at Camp Strader near Crete Wednesday afternoon. An advance guard of a dozen members preceded the main body of thirty or more and got busy on a rustic structure across thre Blue River which they completed before their return to Lincoln Wednesday night.

The bridge is called "The Pathfinder" and the name is worked in the structure. The club members picnicked with the boy scouts in the evening and enjoyed canoeing on the stream. There are about fifty boy scouts camping at this time. The Pathfinders picnicked with the boy scouts last year and intend to make it an annual event.

This is the last meeting for the club until September.

OUTLAWRY ON BIG RAMPAGE

shaven and about thirty years old. Wright gives his age as 27 but looks older. Sawyer says he is 23. Sheriff Warwick reports that a woman may have been with the men who left Boise in a stolen Buick, drove to Whitman county, Wash. left the Buick and stole a Chevrolet then drove to Bickelton where they left the Chevrolet and stole the Buick which was recovered at Franklin. The chain of stolen autos over the entire route reaches a total of six.

Stories told by Sawyer and Wright are not holding up, according to the authorities. Adjutant General Davis of the war department at Washington has wired law enforcement headquarters of failure to identify war enlistment of Sawyer. This man claimed to have served and to have received honorable discharge.

According to State Sheriff Carroll, the men picked up by Sheriff Davis of Nemaha county on suspicion, have no connection with the Walton case. He says that one of them is a newspaper man from Verdigre.

The automobiles have wired Water town, S. Dak. for a full description of Jim Sidles, companion of Wright and Sawyer. Sidles was killed in the auto wreck.

The law enforcement head went to Omaha Thursday afternoon for Charles Elliott and LaRue Reece who will be tried in Lincoln in connection with the t of the Dr. Rogers car later recovered at Blue Hill.

Deputy State Sheriff Fred Benton returned Thursday morning from Lake Andes, S. Dak., with a Ford coupe stolen from John L. Champe Lincoln D. F. Scott, Lake Andes banker, purchased the car from one giving the name of Howard Smith, Butte county. Mr. Benton said that fourteen stolen cars have been found in Lake Andes within two months and that 78 cars have been recovered in that time in Charles Mix county.

The fathers of Val Ellington and O. B. Volle of Summerfield, Kan., have returned home with their offspring. John Moore of Summerfield, dropped in Thursday to inquire about the car which the court ordered confiscated. He claims to hold a title note on the car.

WEATHER HARD ON LEGION ROUND-UP

Go Ahead With Plans for Thursday Afternoon and Evening in Spite of Chilly Breezes.

Despite cold weather and threatening skies, the American legion, roundup drew an attendance of approximately 10,000 at its Wednesday night program at Capital Beach and went steadily on with it plan for entertainment Thursday afternoon and evening.

At 8:20, prizes for the homilest veteran, tallest, shortest, one coming from the longest distance or otherwise remarkable veteran will be given.

The chilly weather interfered with the bathing contest, Wednesday evening altho several water events were participated in by the more hardy swimmers.

The water carnival events began about 6:30 p. m. Prizes were awarded as follows for the various swimming events, Wednesday evening:

Swimming race, Don Coon, a pair of shoes.
Women's swimming race, Grace Bowers, pair of silk hose.
Men's diving, Don McBride, straw hat
Women's diving, Vera Welch, pair silk hose
Women's long distance swim under water Hazel Olds, pair silk hose.
Men's under water swim, Flody Harley, pair silk hose.
Beauty contest for women bathers, Miss Margaret Uter, 2118 Lake street.

Judges of the water carnival contest were Chief of Police Peter Johnstone, Marie Weesner and George Fawell, jr.

During the afternoon Wednesday the American Legion band staged a concert which was well received.

A machine gun manipulated under direction of officers of headquarters company, Third battalion, One hundred and thirty-fourth infantry, Nebraska national guard, gave an exhibition of firing tracer bullets, the flight of which could be seen from the time they left the muzzle of the gun until they hit the target. Guardsmen under direction of First Leut. Edwin F. Hoke and Second Leut. Joseph Schlosser maintained a headquarters tent and did military police duty. The machine gun came from the state university.

One big attraction of Wednesday evening was the diving stunt by Legionaire Jack Payne, world's champion high diver, who took a backward tumble from a 110-foot ladder into a shallow tank of water. The smallness of the tank and the brisk wind that blew made many of the crowd fear Mr. Payne would miss the tank on account of wind and he was urged to come down via the rungs of the ladder instead of thru the air, but finally he ventured and was safe.

The double parachute drop from an airplane was also interfered with on account of the wind which made air stunts hazardous. An airplane, however, did some entertaining tricks over the lake. The hydroplane did not fly.

BUILDING ELECTRIC PLANT

Central Power Company Project to Cost $600,000—Second to Omaha's in State.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., June 28.—Work on the Central Power company's new electric plant on the banks of the Platte off the Burlington right of way six miles east of this city, is progressing rapidly. The new $600,000 investment will give to central Nebraska a plant which, in efficiency, will be second to only one other in the state—that being at Omaha. There are larger plants—notably at Lincoln, but, it is claimed, not as high powered. Two large boilers fed oil heated, burners, and with superheating coils will provide power for generating 3,500 to 3,750 kilowatts. These are on a floor of the steel, concrete and brick building—no other material entering into the construction—eighteen feet above the present land level. Four wells furnishing 4,000 gallons of water per nuite are being put in. An oil tank holding 3,500 barrels is being constructed. From this, some distance from the plant, oil is let into an auxiliary tank for immediate use, this tank being adjacent to the main building. This plant will eventually be connected right up with the Roelus and Kearney units of the company's system.

MORRILL GIFT IS ACCEPTED

FINE PAINTING IS FORMALLY PRESENTED.

F. M. Hall Gives Presentation Address and Dr. S. Mills Hayes Accepts for Art Association —Additional Gifts.

The formal presentation of the painting for whose purchase Charles H. Morrill of Stromsburg presented $1,000 to the Nebraska art association, took place Thursday at 1 o'clock at the University of Nebraska art gallery.

Radio connection was established in order that Mr. Morrill might listen to the audresses at his home in Stromsburg.

In presenting the painting to the board of directors of the art association, F. M. Hall expressed deep appreciation and gratitude to Mr. Morrill for the generous act. He said:

"This is the first substantial gift of the kind that association has ever received. Mr. Morrill is a pioneer in this field just as he was a pioneer in his generous gift to the natural museum of the state university. He was the first man to be recognized in this state by the Kawanis club, when it came to bestowing medals upon worthy and deserving citizens for their generous acts toward the state. He was a pioneer when he came to Nebraska more than fifty years ago and settled on the homestead where he now resides. He was the first man to catch the inspiration in a substantial way, of what a free art gallery means, on the campus of this great university, as an educational force and factor.

"What he is doing, he is doing absolutely for others and without any hope of reward or benefit to himself. The many public services that he has rendered the people of this state, without reward or compensation, stamp him as a real patriot.

"Just a word or two as to the picture. When Mr. Morrill gave this $1,000 with which to buy a picture for the permanent collection of the Nebraska art association he specifically provided that Mrs. Hall and myself should select the picture. We have spent a good deal of time and effort in trying to find a picture and artist, that we thought would be fairly representative and that would please the people and I sincerely hope we have done so, at least, we have worked conscientiously and done the very best we could.

"The picture is painted by F. C. Frieseke one of the foremost American artists. He was born in Michigan but in late years, he has resided in Paris, he has received all the honors that this country and France can confer upon him. One of his pictures hangs in the Luxembourg in Paris and there is hardly an art gallery or museum in this country, worthy of the name, that does not have from one to three of Frieseke's pictures.

"As a member of the Nebraska Art association, I take great pride in having one of his pictures in our permanent collection. I hope this beautiful gift from Mr. Morrill will give us all a new inspiration, added courage, a broader vision, renewed hope and confidence to go forward with out work in a larger way in establishing a free art gallery in our midst, which shall be worthy of the name and a credit to its promoters.

In accepting the painting, Dr. S. Mills Hayes, president of the association, said:

"Mr. Hall has said what should be said of Mr. Morrill, but what Mr. Morrill would not have said about himself.

"The association is proud to add to its collection of paintings this painting by the Hair Kept Beautifully Wavy, Indoors or Out!

Your hair will have a prettier wave and curl than probably it has ever had if, just before doing it up, you will apply a little liquid silmerine with a brush. The waviness will look perfectly natural, and the hair will be sleek and glossy like plush. It will remain in curl the longest time, regardless of heat, wind or moisture, and you won't have to be continually fussing with loose strands or flying ends.

Liquid silmerine is, of course, entirely harmless. It leaves no sticky, greasy or streaky trace. It is also an excellent dressing, keeping the hair delightfully soft and silky. A few ounces from your druggist will last for weeks. It is fine for bobbed as well as long hair.—Advertisement.

Promoters May Ask Postponement of Titular Battle at Shelby

NEED MORE TIME TO SCRAPE NEEDED COIN

Believe Ten Days Will be Sufficient to Get Necessary Funds—Champion May Get $200,000 and Not Raise Hand.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 28—The Great Northern railroad will not come to the financial rescue of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight at Shelby Mont., Ralph Budd, president of the road, declared today.

Budd issued a statement saying the "Great Northern has no thought of doing anything outside the province of railroad operation."

By Henry L. Farrell.

SHELBY, Mont., June 28.—Promoters of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight will ask the boxers and their managers to consent to postponement from July 4 to July 14, it was learned from a reliable source of information today.

Confronted with the problem of raising $273,000 to pay Dempsey the $110,000 still owing on his guarantee, and meet other indebtedness, the promoters seek more time in which to dig up the money.

Believe Money Will Come.

Given a ten day stay; they believe they can scrape together enough cash for Dempsey by July 2 and in the remaining extra time can boom the ticket sale to raise the rest of the sum.

Consent of Jack Kearns and Eddie Kane, managers of the champion and the challenger, will be necessary before there can be a postponement as the contract calls for the bout on July 4. Neither Kearns nor Kane was ready to discuss the postponement until the subject had been officially presented.

Following resignation of Dan Tracy, Great Falls man who was named as the representative of several creditors, Mayor Jim Johnson was back in the saddle as the big boss of the fight.

"I have $300,000 worth of unencumbered property and with this back of me, I'll say the fight is on. We have put to much in this not to go thru with it," Johnson said.

Both in Fine Shape.

Experts who have been watching both Gibbons and Dempsey in training have expressed the opinion that both the champion and the challenger are in fine shape. Many of them say that Gibbons appears to be lighter and less strong than the champion, and many criticize Gibbons for not having heavier sparring partners.

Others give Gibbons a fine chance on the ground that Dempsey, for natural reasons, cannot be as good as he was four years ago or two years ago.

Shelby was deep in mud again today after a heavy rain and the promoters of two rival rodeos in town were lending a voice to the dirge of the fight promoters.

Looks Hopeless to O'Neil.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 28.—The Dempsey-Gibbons July 4th fight transaction looks like a 'hopeless flat tire," John O'Neil, one of the most liberal of Great Falls' contributors to Dempsey's purse, declared here.

He predicted that the promotion would go down as the greatest fiasco of the kind that ever occurred.

O'Neil made these statements after conferring with Dan Tracy, who yesterday resigned the directorate of the show following a conference in Shelby.

Dempsey must continue training until next Tuesday when the final installment falls due, but O'Neil admitted that there is only the remotest outside chance that the champion will ever be called upon to raise a hand against Gibbons for his $200,000 already received and banked outside the state of Montana.

Dempsey lacks that sparkling enthusiasm in his training for the fight with Gibbons that characterized his work at Atlantic City before his bout with Carpentier.

Dempsey's skin shows many blemishes decidedly noticeable on a man who in his previous exhibitions to close public scrutiny showed leathery tan and fleckless skin.

Yesterday Dempsey sparred with the little fellows, going two four minute rounds with Billy Wells, English welterweight, Lee Moore featherweight and Johnnie Curry, bantamweight.

His work was restrained because of the lightness of his opponents.

YOUTHFUL BARNYARD GOLF MARVEL PRIDE OF WAHOO

WAHOO, Neb., June 28.—Members of the Wahoo horse shoe club believe they have produced the juvenile champion horse shoe pitcher of Nebraska. He is Glenn Robbins, the thirteen-year-old son of Louis Robbins of Wahoo. He recently pitched twenty-one ringers without a single break and it is no uncommon thing for him to throw a dozen or fifteen ringers in succession.

Young Robbins has been pitching horse shoes for only about a year. He is a worthy antagonist for the best of the local devotees of the barn yard golf game and neither asks or gives any odds to his opponents but manages to loop the stake with surprising regularity.

Buck's Clan Makes Five Errors Due to Winds Causing Misjudgments—DeButch Goes Into the Field for Kinkel.

FAIRBURY, Neb., June 27.—Manager Segrist's proteges won a 6 to 2 victory over the Links, here, Wednesday afternoon, by clouting Stokes, pitching ace of the State league for twelve hits. Willey, who pitched for the Coyotes, held the visitors scoreless until the ninth inning

The Fairbury nine managed to get in two scores in the first inning, three more counters in the fourth frame, and an additional tally in the seventh Bunched hits, coupled with boots on the Lincoln players, combined in favor of the Coyotes. The locals registered twelve safe bingles while Buck's clan was able to collect but nine.

Bondurant and Purdy each went to second on hits they pounded off of Willey. However, Willey, according to the dope sheet, had the better of the mound argument thruout the game when he retired six and passed none while Stokes struck out four and let four walk. Can Gene Criqui Be Knocked Out?

Can young Gene Criqui, the new featherweight champion of the world, be knocked out?

Some folk around New York are asking that question, thinking they can stir up an argument. They contend Criqui's new jaw, reconditioned and reinforced after having been torn away by a bullet at Verdun, is knock-out proof.

It is claimed the new jaw has been so inclosely interwoven with remaining tissues of the old that he can withstand a cannon on that lower section of his map.

The contention will be in dispute for some time to come, because there doesn't seem any likelihood of anyone hitting Criqui very hard on the jaw. He certainly shouldn't get it when he meets Johnny Dundee, because the little Italian—while a brilliant boxer—was never mean enough to knock anyone out—intentionally.

All Capital City Battlers Getting Into Action Independence Afternoon

Harold Jelsma Goes Against Newsboy Brown While Soklyn and Strayer are at Casper, Wyo.

By John Casey.

July fourth will find the four leading boxers of Lincoln in the middle of considerable action. Harold Jelsma, Capital City bantam, will engage Newsboy Brown, Sioux City, at Newcastel, Neb. Jelsma lost to Brown here. With this defeat fairly fresh in the Lincoln atom's mind, he is taring diligently with the hope of blotting it off his record.

Sid Soklyn goes against Ted Gartin, a Lincoln boy, at Casper, Wyo., in twelve rounds. Battling Strayer goes against Otto Wallace on the same card. Both Soklyn and Strayer have been working daily. Twelve rounds is two rounds more than either battler is used to going.

Ace Hudkins, featherweight, is signed for ten rounds with Ale Dale, Denver, as the main even of the Bridgeport American Legion's Fourth of July show.

Rusty Evans, York, and Kid Morley, trade 'emb in the main event of the Aurora American Legion's show.

The Reformatory nine won a 2 to 1 victory over Alles Brothers Grocery Wednesday evening in a five inning twilight game staged on the Reformatory diamond. The grocers single score came when Wisdom, Reformatory twirler, passed a man with the bases loaded. A brisk wind hindered the players.

Cup the Hand Behind the Ear and Tune In On This

In another day Heywood Broun, one of the best known writers in America will start his articles about the Dempsey-Gibbons fight in the Journal. They'll appear daily. You can't afford to miss them.

In addition to this, the Journal will have Henry L. Farrell, sports editor of the United Press, at the ringside with a leased wire. The blow-by-blow details of what will probably be one of the greatest fights in ring history will be megaphoned from the Journal office.

Monte Munn will do the announcing. Monte went three rounds with Dempsey at Kansas City about a year ago in an exhibition bout.

So lay your plans for Independence afternoon so that you can drop down to the Journal office about 4 p. m. when the big fight starts, or earlier if you are interested in the preliminaries, and get in on the "inside" a couple of seconds after it happens at Shelby.

The Morning Journal will carry the full Associated Press report o fthe fight.

LITTLE LESSONS IN GOLF

How should the putting stance differ form other stances?

Answered by

PHIL GAUDIN

Medalist, British open championship; captain of British international golf team; member of that team for eight consecutive years. Winner of numerous foreign tournaments, including Manchester Guardian trophy.

The putting stance must differ from other stances because, in putting, greater steadiness and not so much force is needed. Better concentration can be secured by the close, almost cramped stance which many players use. To give any definite directions for a putting stance is not desirable because the many positions that may be successfully used differ so greatly. However, it is safe to say that almost always the feet are close together and the body does not have that freedom of action which is so necessary for other golf strokes.

WASHINGTON HAS A CHINAMAN'S CHANCE

Huskies Stroke Suffers From Infected Knee and Coach Callow Holds no Hopes for Western Victory in Regatta.

By Frank Getty

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 28.—The ghost of a chance to snatch the country's highest rowing honors from the pick of eastern eights was all that remained for the University of Washington today.

High hopes held out for a western victory went back west when Coach "Rusty" Callow of the husky Washingtonians annoupced that Don Walling, his stroke, would row this afternoon but would be tremendously weakened as a result of blood poisoning in his knee.

Navy the Ruling Favorite.

Three straight for the navy, victors of 1921 and 1922, seemed to most experts to be assured, as crowds gathered and the river swarmed with activity in the hours before the annual intercollegiate regatta.

Cloudy weather with a possibility of showers before race time, marked a change from the brilliant sunshine and dry heat of the last few days

The navy crew has the choice position, number four, in the varsity race which starts at 6 p. m. Lanes sometimes account for victories at Poughkeepsie, the tide and the wind playing no little part in helping one crew where they freakishly hinder another.

Faces around the "Huskies" camp are long and grim today. Coach Callow has as good as said tht no victory need be expected of his crew this season. Don Walling will row; he stroked the eight in its final practice in the cool of the evening yesterday, but he came back to the boat house face distorted with pain and suffering agonies from his infected knee.

The westerners are sure to put all they have—and that little bit more that crews like Washington produce for just such an occasion as this—into the racing this evening, but it is doubtful if it will be enough.

Syracuse Claims Dark Horse.

Syracuse rooters are insisting their crew is the real "mystery" crew. Columbia is picked as perhaps the second best crew, with the staying powers of Jim Rice's boys in question.

Cornell is given that outside chance, which may mean nothing; if Penn wins it will be a surprise

The junior 'varsity race will be rowed two miles down stream at 4:15, the freshmen meet over the same course at 5 o'clock, while the 'varsity eights are not due until 6 p. m. daylight saving time

Zev's Withdrawal Increases Interest

CINCINNATI, O., June 28.—Interest increased today in Saturday's Latonia derby following the announcement that Zev, fleet idol of the present racing season has been withdrawn with a swollen ankle.

It now appears probable an even dozen will parade to the post.

Withdrawal of Zev also caused the withdrawal of Bud Lerner, his stable companion. H. P. Whitney's Chickvale injured himself yesterday and will be able to run

The stock of several other turf aristocrats and especially Audley Stables, The Clown, have been boosted tremendously and many race followers consider it will now be a much better horse race.

The Clown's 2:33 2-5 workout on the derby course yesterday afternoon was a sensation.

The probable field for the Latonia derby follows:

J. S. Cosden's Martingale, Mrs Whitney's Rialto, Sandy McNaughton's, Little Celt, E. R. Bradley's Triumph, Audley Stables, The Clown, George Wingfield's General Thatcher, John Herz's Chittagong, Lou Marshal's Prince K., Carl Widemann's In Memoriam, T. J. Vendergast's Bo McMillian, H. P. Headley's Hopeless and C. R. Allen's Calcutta.

Mack Garner, the track's star jockey, will ride a Whitney entry.

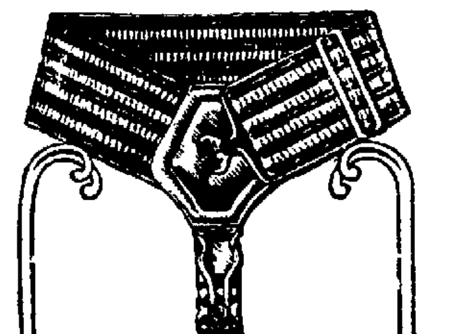

Chance Makes Some Changes.

Frank Chance is trying to and succeeding in changing some things around the Red Sox park. No good ball players have been sold within the last few days because there aren't very many. But it's sort of hard to mould a golden statue out of clay.

VINCENT RICHARDS WINS WAY THRU FOURTH ROUND

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, June 28.—Prices closed irregular on the Chicago board of trade today, wheat regaining its earlier losses with a good class of buying while corn and oats closed irregularly.

The wheat market was featured by many dips and rallies thruout the session. Prices slumped when early buyers found the market lacked support. Later, however, on receipt of unfavorable news, together with improved export business, early losses were regained and the market made fractional gains. Advices from New York declared leading banking interests bought between 300,000 and 400,000 bushels of wheat for future delivery, indicating that values have reached a point where buying within reason can be done with confidence.

Corn remained erratic thruout the later trading and displayed an easier undertone, due generally to favorable crop news.

The oats market slumped after displaying individual strength earlier on reports of crop damage by the enduring hot spell in scattered sections.

Provisions were weak.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Grain prices were irregular at the opening on the Chicago board of trade today.

Despite a sharp decline in Liverpool, a good class of buying brought a heavy upturn in wheat prices at the opening. Receipts were 15 cars.

After an irregular opening, corn rallied and advanced with wheat. Receipts, 100 cars.

Oats were higher. Receipts, 40 cars.

Provisions were unchanged.

Grain Market Opinions.

Clement Curtis & Co.: The black rust period in the northwest is rapidly approaching.

Logan & Bryan: Conservatism is urged on the selling side.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: We look for sharp reactions from oversold spots.

Stein-Alstrin: Wheat closed with a discouraging tone, but such a condition sometimes precedes a turn for the better.

Hulburd, Warren & Chandler: The trade can only await a change in northwest rather conditions to start a revival of speculative activity.

Simpson: While there is some increase in the investment demand for wheat, it is not heavy enough to overcome the hedging and selling pressure. Corn: The receipts of cash corn for the time being will be the main factor in corn.—Lamson.

INDOOR SPORTS

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Another change of heart by a statistical service, which turned bearish earlier in the week, apparently had some effect on the investment rails in the early dealings on the stock exchange today. New York Central jumped a full point to 93½ on the initial transaction and Union Pacific 1¼ to 130½. Rails were also helped by continuance of record loadings for the season.

The total for the week ending June 16 again exceeded one million and scored an increase of 158,598 over the corresponding week last year.

The Raiders.

Senator Borah speaks of fuel, freight rate and other forms of profiteering as intolerable, and predicts the next congress will make a sincere effort to find the remedy. "These measures will be denounced as radical," says the senator, "and may or may not prove a solution, but those who oppose them must be ready to offer substitute remedies as these conditions cannot be permitted to continue."

An accurate forecast. The day of the profiteer is passing.—Capper's Weekly.

FOURTH STREET PHILOSOPHY

Russell Questions the Future of Our Civilization.

How quickly times change now! We have seen them change even in our little day. The pleasures our fathers knew in the age of innocence, those simple pleasures, no longer delight us. Setting then and now besides each other we find that then it was the chorus. Fleshy ladies, imperfectly clad, usually blondes, capered mightily on the stage of the old-fashioned theater, whirling their skirts, throwing their arms over their heads and making a noise like an Indian attack on the big receipts at the box office. We all went. And we must have enjoyed it, for it kept up year after year. And the legend in the mouths of men, and the funny pictures, insisted on bald headed men particularly enraptured. Such occupied the front seats.

Undoubtedly some of the balded headed men of then were unwise. It must be admitted, for every class has its sheep and its goats. Baldheadedness may be an expression of worldly wisdom, but then, as now, it was no proof of spiritual attainment and the possession of absolute truth. Hence there were, undoubtedly, bald men of the baser sort occupying the front seats, while the fleshyladies capered and yelled, and the orchestra shrilled, shook and moaned.

But as the time ripened, the chorus dwindled and passed—largely, and the baldheaded men thinned out and disappeared from the front seats. The cabaret came in and with it the dancing. It all became more personal and intimate. The chorus was down among the tables in the cafe and the tables were pushed back and lo! America dancing! The baldheaded man was there, himself capering to orchestral accompaniment and showing little evidence of further spiritual attainment of time.

But have we become a trifle bored by dancing and the cabaret stuff? Is it, too, on the point of passing? Arthur Ficke, the poet, gives evidence in his "Cafe Sketches" that such is becoming. He sits there, toying with the food, watching the dancers, and as he sits and observes he seizes the pencil and writes:

Presently persons will come out
And shake legs.
I do not want legs shaken,
I want immortal souls shaken unreasonably,
I want to see dawn spilled across the blackness
Like a scrambled egg on a skillet:
I want miracles, wonders,
Tidings out of a deep I do not know.
But I have a horrible suspicion
That neither you
Nor your esteemed consort
Nor I myself
Can ever provide these simple things
For which I am so patiently waiting.

You see, the cabaret is worn and passing. The poet is getting a bit tired of it all and he is blazzay about it. He longs for tidings out of some unknown deep elsewhere.

So here we are at a turning point again. The cabaret stuff is tiresome. Now the problem presents itself, shall we—the country—go on and do a fall as Greece and Rome did, by getting worse and worse, or have we reached a turning point, one that will turn us up, and let us go on again with "a new prime?"

I was sitting in at a banquet the other night and the imperfectly dressed lady came out and danced and yelled terribly—and I registered uneasiness. I turned to a neighbor who was toying with the food, but with one eye cocked at the dancer, and I said: "That's why Greece and Rome fell, isn't it?" And he said, "Then I don't wonder they fell."

He was getting tired of it, too.

Yes, "well, what next?" That is the question. If the musical comedy is gone and the cabaret game is wearing thin in spots, what shall we have to take their places?

I don't think for a moment it will take any such form, at once, as a terrific rush to hear Dr. Richard Burton lecture on the literary side of the Bible—tho I can imagine far worse pleasures.

It will hardly take the form of intellectual enjoyment yet. But there is a great rush in the larger cities to Shakespearian performance and Dr. Burton always talks to full houses. Probably this indicates little. Nor will the radio fill the bill. It is not vicious and exciting enough. I "listened in" the other night and a gentleman was telling how to keep a bee and raise your own honey. Stung!

But the old-time chorus has gone and the cabaret and dancing are wearing thin—and the saloon is gone.

What next? Is there not some good old fashioned vice that might come in again and perhaps bring with it the bustle, or hoopskirts, or spats, or sidewiskers? Dearest what shall we do next?—A. J. R. in Minneapolis Journal.

State Mottoes, and States.

The people of Massachusetts frequently gaze on their state motto, "Ense petit placidam sub libertate quietem," but it is doubtful if more than two out of a hundred can translate it. The linguists inform us that it means: "With the sword she seeks quiet peace under liberty."

Nearly all the states have mottoes and if appropriately chosen they ought to reflect the character of the inhabitants thereof. Our Massachusetts motto sounds just a shade bloodthirsty for these times, when swords have mostly gone out of fashion except for ceremonial parades. Considering the way people lie down under great abuses without making any powerful protest against them some might say that the motto does not represent the temper of the state at this time.

Still it was representative of the feeling of Massachusetts in those grand formative days when our state grew from a feeble colony into a powerful democratic commonwealth. The blood of many citizens showed loyalty to this spirit in the Revolutionary war and later in all the conflicts in which this country was engaged, never more glorfously than only five years ago, when our boys fought in the fields of France for quiet peace under liberty. The state guardsmen who rallied to the defense of Boston when that city was given over by police strikers to the license of the mob, showed that the old spirit is latent underneath and will flame up in sacrifice and devotion when occasion comes.

Some of the state mottoes voice a heroic sentiment, others are not without a humorous touch. Alabama's slogan "Here is rest," might be considered appropriate to a locality where climate makes people lazy. Wyoming's watchword, "Cedant arma Togae," or "Let arms yield to the gown," might be considered fitting to that state that first adopted woman's suffrage. Kansas has a touch of the heroic in "Ad astra per aspera." "To the stars thru thorns". If Massachusetts can show in the conflicts of civic and political life the resolute spirit that was indicated by the ancient maxim that appears on its state seal, its future is secure.—Salem (Mass.) News.

Will Senator Borah Fight Cleanly?

The more Senator Borah's attack on the world court is considered the more damaging it is to Senator Borah's reputation. For we are unable to believe that the senator is as ignorant of the nature of the court as passages in his speech would suggest. We do not believe for example, that Senator Borah really believes that by adhering to the court the American government in any way makes itself the arbiter of European disputes. We do not believe that Senator Borah really believes that the court "directs" the league of nation. For we cling to a belief in Senator Borah's intelligence.

The performance is all the more discreditable because it must be put down not to ignorance but to partisanship and a deliberate attempt to arouse prejudice. For no man who is on record, as Senator Borah is, in favor of a world court possessing compulsory jurisdiction and exercising the powers of our supreme court, can honestly oppose the existing court as a danger to our sovereignty or as a step to a superstate. If a court without teeth is a menace, then Mr. Borah's court is seven times more menacing.

A man may be opposed to any international court. But he cannot reasonably be in favor of a compulsory court and at the same time opposed to a voluntary court because it threatens the independence of America. Such contortions are impossible to explain on any ground but a partisan desire to muddy the waters and win a fight regardless of object and of method.

Mr. Borah opened his attack on the league of nations by declaring that it was inspired by the spirit of bolshevism. That was a piece of demagoguery which the senator has since managed to live down. His attack on the court is, however, fully as untruthful as his earlier assaults on the league. Assuming, as we do, that Mr. Borah is an intelligent man, his fighting tactics are hardly clean.—New York World.

Battery Still in Existence.

Alexander Hamilton, statesman and diplomat, originator of our monetary system, like most men of his time, included in his list of accomplishments something of military training. In 1776, Hamilton, then captain, organized the first artillery in New York. This was the first of the militia organizations to be incorporated in the continental army, which event took place in 1777, and after the Revolutionary war, it was the one state organization to be retained in the regular army.

White Plains saw Hamilton's artillerymen receive their baptism of fire. After the revolutionary war the battery, instead of being mustered out, was sent to West Poine for station. In 1846 the battery again unlimbered in the war with Mexico, Indian fighting and troubles in Florida and the Northwest occupied the time of the organization until the civil war. The history during this conflict is one of constant battle and campaigning. The battery is now a part of the Sixty-second Artillery, which has been organized as a motorized anti-aircraft unit.—Detroit News.

Locating Squeaks.

Squeaks are sometimes a hazardous undertaking to locate. A body resting on the frame unevenly will in most instances cause a cracking sound. By placing strips of leather between body and frame (preferably where body bolts pass thru the frame) this often overcomes this noise. A rubbing or rattling noise can most frequently be attributed to the edges of doors rubbing against their frames.

Another annoying noise which often occurs is a sharp, dry squeak coming from spring shackle bolts, brake rod, clevys, pins, steering cross tube connections, etc. Many owners and drivers become discouraged in their attempt to obliterate such squeaks. Examine oilers or grease cups attached to spring bolts, etc.; to determine that same have free passage. Probably some of the above connections are too tight or paint may be keeping the lubricant from reaching the vital points. Squirt a superflous amount of oil around all moving parts. See that brakes are released completely and free from dragging.—Automobile Digest.

Americans Superior in Golfing Skill

The Sporting Life of London gives the British sentiment regarding American golf. An English student of the game writing under the pseudonym of "Fairway," says in a recent issue:

"W have been compelled to admit since 1921 that the American golfer is now our superior in skill and in the proper application of the club to the ball.

"But what hitherto we have not confessed is that they are our superiors in temperament. And yet temperament, the most important factor in golf, lost us amateur honors at St. Andrews."

DO YOU KNOW?

When Hornsby made his home run record in 1922, whose former record did he beat? L. M. G.

Hornsby's forty-two homers beat the National league record of twenty-seven, made by Ed Williamson in 1884.

What is meant by "pulling a John Anderson?" Ben M.

In baseball parlance, this means trying to steal a base already occupied by a base-runner. John Anderson, who played with Brooklyn and Milwaukee in the 1890's, once attempted to to steal with the bases full and his name has graced the act ever since.

What college pitcher is most sought after this season? R. W. N.

Carroll, of Holy Cross, is generally conceded to be the best of present day college twirlers. He is rumored to have received offers from several major league teams and to have declined because he intends to enter the priesthood. His pitching has been the sensation of the year.

WAGNER'S WIDOW REJOICES

BELIEVES MUSICIAN TO BE RESTORED TO HONOR.

Siegfreid Wagner, a Son of Composer, to Come to America to Get Funds to Restore Festivals.

BAYREUTH, Bavaria, June 28. A withered old woman lies tossing in pain upon the bed to which she has been confined for years in a molding, weather-beaten old house atop the hill overlooking the wonderful Bayreuther valley.

But the pain is drugged with a newfound joy and a vision of her husband, the great Richard Wagner of Germany, restored to honor.

High-minded Americans are to rebuild the settings for nature's greatest opera scene and resume, she believes, the big Bayreuther festivals, in memory of the famed composer!

She does not know that her son is planning to go to America to earn money on the concert stage for the proposed restoration. She thinks some great charitable Americans "are going to help us put the forest theater in shape to resume father's plays."

Old Lady Cosima Wagner is now eighty-five and the son, Siegfried, fears to tell her that he may go across the ocean. The shock might kill her. He merely has said that the money is coming from charitable millionaires in that western fairyland across the Atlantic, where there are dollars, many dollars—dollars to restore the music of Wagner to its place of honor on the Bavarian hillside.

Cried With Joy.

"Ach, mein lieber!" the old lady cried with tears of joy in her eyes when her son brought the news.

"Those are great people, the Americans. I do hope their plan comes thru. Will it not be wonderful?"

Since 1906, Lady Cosima has not been active. When the theater was closed in 1914 it nearly broke her heart. As each day passed since then her hope has been fading with her strength and now—just as she was finally succumbing to fate—she has been revived and made young again. All the terror of bedridden years are swept away by this new hope.

In reply to a question as to whether Wagner explained his plans for concerts had been somewhat disturbed by critics in musical magazines who accuse him of shielding behind the desire to restore the Bayreuth spectacles, another motive of personal greed. He referred to the statement of Otto Kahn, musical philanthropist, that "We shouldn't offer any more money on the altar of Wagner."

Son is Old.

"If I were twenty-four instead of more than fifty, I would gladly make the trip free, but I am old," Siegfried said. "I have a household of fourteen—my wife, mother, four children and seven servants to support.

"I am willing to make the trip for one-fourth of the receipts or less, with the remainder for the beloved Bayreuther theater.

Chorus girls and actors cost all of 25 cents a day to maintain, minus their beer or schapps, he mused, while tabulating the cost to resume the Bayreuther festivals. A large number of Americans and English attended them before the war. All-in-all he concluded, it would take $60,000 to $75,000 to rehabilitate the massive forest theater and provide it with scenery and actors. It would have cost $100,000 to $150,000 before the war.

GOLF AND PONIES LIKE WOMEN

Can't Tell a Thing About Any of the Three at Any Time.

There are now two things beside women that you can never tell about. The ponies often exhibit temperamental tendencies, and a horse that wins one day may be last against the same field the next. But in golf, form varies even more strikingly.

Jess Sweetser went to England a favorite and come home, after a half dozen matches, without having turned in one score to compare with his usual form.

Gene Sarazen cleaned up in the matches preliminary to the British open championship and then didn't even succeed in qualifying in a field of 222 entrants.

How to Carry Your Travel Money

Whether you travel by steam railroad or by automobile any considerable distance, you will need a supply of ready money or its equivalent to meet your expenses. A large sum in banknotes or legal tender is not only unhandy to carry but dangerous as well.

This difficulty is easily overcome by converting your cash into Travelers Cheques before you start. Your own check on one of the Lincoln banks may be good for many thousand dollars, and gladly accepted here; but 500 or 1,000 miles away, where you are not known, you may have much trouble realizing cash on one of your own checks.

But if your "travel money" is in the form of A. B. A. Cheques, you will find this to be true: "If ever money means anything, A. B. A. Cheques mean more." We can supply them in compact wallets in denominations of $10, $20, $50 and $100. They are as good [illegible] and well made as new banknotes, and have this big advantage: If lost or stolen (uncountersigned by you) a refund may be obtained.

If you contemplate taking a trip to some foreign land, ask for our booklet, [illegible]. It gives valuable information regarding [illegible] reservations, deck chairs and steamer rugs, hotel accommodations abroad, your baggage, customs [illegible]—in fact, all the vitally important things you need to know before starting on your journey. MEN AND THINGS

Murray Butler says that he sometimes thinks, when he contemplates what education does to a lot of people, that it would be wise counsel to agitate for compulsory illiteracy Mr Butler, it seems to us, is borrowing a lot of unnecessary trouble When we stand on the edge of the precipices of knowledge and view the vast chasm of ignorance that stretches out before us we feel no qualms about education overwhelming us or proving disadvantageous Our real trouble is not too much education, but too much of a smattering of knowledge If we knew fewer things and more about each of those we would all be more useful citizens.

Big city dwellers all make fun of the riverside dwellers who move back into their homes, if the flood has been good enough to leave the houses intact, just as soon as the waters subside They are listed as chumps who ought to learn something by experience But the big city folks are not a whit different Let an elevated train jump the track and land on their house and do they vacate the premises? They do not, they rebuild on the same spot and hope that it won't happen again They pack theaters and trains and endure holdups, all for the pleasure of living together in vast numbers, like rabbits in a warren

Living as we do in territory that was dry before the eighteenth amendment stretched its lazy length across the land, we probably do not understand the feeling of desperation that seemingly has seized upon so many in the big cities, particularly those where such a large proportion of the citizens are foreign born and who have never discovered that one of the means by which tyrant and king were able, for so long, to make them slaves was by giving them free access to plenty of cheap liquor We had plenty of opportunity, in pre-prohibition days here, to understand how many persons there were who thought everything else in life insignificant if they were hampered in their pursuit of booze, and if we recall this we may get a glimpse into the workings of the New York mind

A Chicago judge who has heard divorce cases extending over a long period of years expressed himself the other day as puzzled to decide whether more domestic trouble was caused by drink than by bad temper, and he made it plain that he did not think it any greater infirmity of character for a man to frequently get drunk and raise the devil around the house than for a woman to give rein to a sharp tongue and produce the same sort of result He added "A bad habit is a bad habit, and it brings trouble always in its wake. If the institution of marriage ever breaks down, as it gives strong signs of doing, it will be because men and women act as tho a wedding ceremony carried with it a license to act as they please or say what they please"

Unless a criminal has the good luck to get to defend him a lawyer who is clever enough to get up a really workable defense, he makes a very ineffective effort to explain away the incriminating facts about his offense A reading of the briefs filed in supreme court indicates clearly that a decreasing percentage of lawyers is willing to lend their brains to thus effect a prisoner's escape, which is no less an offense than lending him a set of saws Most of them seem to think the best way is to let the accused man tell the story as he fixed it up himself. And if you still think that lawbreakers are clever or wise, just read some of their ridiculous alibis

We can, of course, see why it is necessary for regents and boards of directors to keep their hands off the teaching force to the extent of not telling them what they should teach, but have they no duties toward those responsible for their being placed in a position of control and supervision or those who repose confidence in them because of their position that warrants them in saying to a professor 'You can't teach that doctrine here." If a professor taught free love, barn-burning or something equally obnoxious, everybody would join in running him out of his job, but are we to leave these matters to a referendum or to a board of control? Who is to draw the line?

About once in every five years an elevated train leaps off the rails and plunges into the street below in one or the other of our big cities where this mode of travel is employed. The marvel of it is that more of them do not jump their tracks. Anyone who has ever ridden in them or watched them dart and curve thru the streets and alleys will recall the fascination that they had for the eye, and most it lay in the conviction of the brain that if one stayed around a little bit longer one of them would take the plunge

It's no trick t' git wives t' cut out sugar, fer what they're really workin' toward is t' cut out all food if they kin drive th' men folks t' eat downtown After who names th' Pullman coaches is safely behind th' bars, let's git after th' feller that names th' running horses

BRAIN TESTS
(By Sam Loyd)

7 Minutes to Answer This

In going from Inverness to Glasgow a distance of 189 miles I was offered the choice of a single guage railway or a lumbering old stage coach I selected the latter as being just half a day quicker, and from that circumstance I was enabled to jot down an interesting problem connected with my journey

The train and the coach left simultaneously from opposite ends of the route, so, by the aid of milestones I was able to figure out that when we met the train from Glasgow, we had beaten it just as many miles as we had traveled hours

Let us see who can figure out how far we were from Glasgow when the train met the coach
